Condon Again Asks Hoover to Apologize

Truman List Of Domestic 'Must' Bills Bogs Down

Log-Jam In House, T-H Repeal Debate In Senate Tie Up Much of Program

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

President Truman's domestic program, including nearly all of his key campaign pledges, is virtually at a standstill in the House and badly stalled in the Senate.

More than the usual session-end log-jam has developed in the House. The House isn't considering major bills because it hasn't any to consider. The big ones are either delayed or blocked in committees. That goes for housing, civil rights, Federal aid to education and many another.

The Senate has plenty of bills on tap, jammed up behind debate on the Administration's labor bill. But the line forms in the rear of the North Atlantic Pact and Reciprocal Trade extension. Many a Truman "must" following these will be tagged out by adjournment.

Most pressing immediate impasse is the perennial appropriations pile-up worse this session than usual. The new fiscal year, when Government money runs out, is less than three weeks away. But not a single regular appropriation bill has reached the President. All have passed the House, but only three have cleared the Senate. These are still tied up in conference.

What adds to the Administration jitters is the possibility of an afterthought percentage cut applying even to those appropriation bills that have been cleared.

With the session nearly six months under way, Mr. Truman has only two really major bills to thank Congress for—renewed rent controls and ECA extension. The last is really only half a bill, since Congress hasn't yet cleared ECA money.

Even some of the Administration's early successes have bogged down in House-Senate conferences. That goes for Hoover plan reorganization authority. The House exempted several agencies, but required a two-House veto to stop a merger. The Senate exempted none, but gave either House merger veto authority. Conferees for weeks have tried and failed to find a compromise.

Some of the House committee delays have all of the earmarks of a planned coalition slowdown. Best example is last week's 7 to 5 Rules Committee refusal to clear the long range housing bill even though the committee can and will be by-passed by the new Rayburn discharge rule.

The effect is to delay a House vote on housing until June 27, the next applicable "discharge day." One explanation is that some members of the coalition think time is on their side on this and other "Fair Deal" bills—that deflationary trends may help roll up enough economy sentiment to stop them. Leaders still claim the

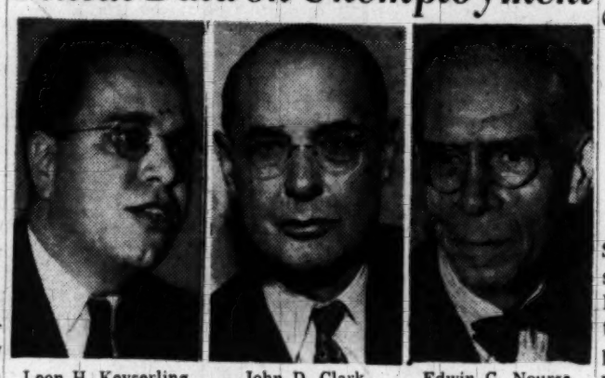
Too Low, Economists Say

Truman's Advisers Challenge Census Data on Unemployment



Leon H. Keyserling | John D. Clark | Edwin G. Nourse
Disagree as to When U. S. Should Take Action.

By Robert S. Allen

The Census Bureau's latest unemployment figures are under sharp fire in President Truman's Council of Economic Advisers.

Staff experts of the council are challenging the figures as too low and "unrealistic."

According to the Census report, unemployment jumped to 3,289,000 in the week ended May 14. That was an increase of 273,000 over the previous month.

The eight economists, who prepare the data on which the three CEA members base their reports to the President, estimate the jobless total at around 4,800,000.

The CEA economists do agree with the Census Bureau on one point. That unemployment will continue to mount.

To White House insiders, there is an ominous significance in the two views of these economists. If their figure is correct and no immediate job improvement is in sight, then the economic situation is approaching the "danger deadline" privately fixed by the President.

This deadline is five million unemployed.

450,000 Coal Miners Begin Week's Strike

Pittsburgh, June 13 (Monday) (AP).—John L. Lewis' 450,000 United Mine Workers struck today for the second time this year.

A one-week walkout was called by the UMW chief to "stabilize" the industry. There was no opposition to the union leader's orders—his hard and soft coal diggers simply stayed home.

Only the 16,000 members of the Progressive Mine Workers in Illinois are expected to work this week, along with a few independent strip miners.

Coal industry leaders have condemned Lewis' strike action. Walter R. Thurmond, secretary of the Southern Producers' Association, says there's nothing in the contract to permit the walkout. But that doesn't bother Lewis—or his followers.

One miner summed up things pretty well when he said:

"I think John L's afraid there's too much coal above ground for him to do much business with the operators."

While the miners spend the week fishing or helping with household chores, Lewis will be very busy trying to do business with two segments of the mine industry. He wants to write a new contract. The present mine pact expires June 30.

Today the UMW begins contract talks with U. S. Steel Corp. at Philadelphia. The corporation employs 20,000 UMW members in its so-called "captive" pits. The "captives" are steel-company owned mines whose entire output is used in steelmaking.

Lewis also is engaged in negotiating a new contract with the Southern coal operators. The talks will be resumed Tuesday in Bluefield, W. Va.

So far the UMW leader has ignored the big bloc of northern operators, but there are recurrent reports he soon will open a "third front" wage discussion with them.

Lewis wants more money from the operators, who now pay a 20-cent-a-ton royalty to finance his 100-million-dollar a year welfare fund. Some persons say he wants the ante upped to 40 cents a ton.

Lewis has remained mum about wage boosts and a reduction in work hours. Miners now receive an average of $14.05 daily.

The mountains of coal reserves are not calculated to strengthen Lewis' bargaining hand. The Bureau of Mines estimated the Nation's coal supply as of last May 1 to be enough for 52 days.

The strike is not expected to cause widespread layoffs.

Army Security Bartered for Pay Increases

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

A survey of recent officer retirements just completed at the Pentagon reveals some new and pertinent facts about the military pay bill now pending before Congress.

It emphasizes a little-known, but major feature of the legislation—that officers and their families are trading a considerable portion of their present security for higher pay checks for all hands.

For a long time, Regular officers have been eligible for retirement at three-quarters of their active duty pay if disease, injury or wounds rendered them unfit to perform the field duties required of their rank. The present bill would change all that.

To determine the effect of the drastically revised new physical disability rules, the Army made a study of the records of the last 144 officers retired for disability.

It was found that had the new bill been in effect when they were retired:

Thirty-seven per cent of them would have qualified for the maximum, tax-free pension.

Sixteen per cent would have been honorably discharged with severance pay only.

The remainder would have qualified for some retirement pay ranging from 30 to 70 per cent of their active pay, but—like these qualifying for the full rate—would not automatically draw such pay for life. They would have to undergo periodic reexamination for five years.

Reviewing the survey, staff ex-

Two Rembrandts Reported Stolen From Princeton

Princeton, N. J., June 12 (U.P.).—Two Rembrandt etchings and a Degas pencil sketch were stolen from the Princetor University art museum during an alumni celebration of old home week on the campus, it was disclosed today.

Police said someone apparently carried out the three pictures, valued at a total of $11,800, frames and all while the gallery was crowded with visitors.

The stolen Rembrandts were "Clement de Johghe," valued at $5500, and "Goldweighers' Field," valued at $6000. The pencil drawing by the French impressionist, Degas, "Horse and Jockey," was valued at $300.

Dog Lover Killed Swerving Car to Avoid Hitting One

Clarksville, Va., June 12 (AP).—Not so long ago, C. W. Blanks, of Clarksville, offered a substantial reward for the name of the motorist who ran over and killed his dog.

Today, Blanks was dead—because of someone else's dog. He was killed when he swerved his car across Highway 58, just south of here, to avoid hitting a dog.

The car went out of control, left the highway and overturned. Blanks died before he reached a hospital.

Acheson Hits Russians for 'Propaganda'

Vishinsky's Proposal For German Treaty Is 'All Fleas, No Dog,' Secretary Complains

Paris, June 12 (AP).—United States Secretary of State Acheson tonight told the Russian Foreign Minister that the latter's proposal for a German peace treaty was as "full of propaganda as a dog is of fleas."

"In fact," said Acheson, "I think it is all fleas and no dog."

[Russia's Andrei Vishinsky was not angered by the figure of speech but came back with a good-humored retort which sent the ministers off on a tangential debate, according to the New York Herald Tribune's correspondent.

[Vishinsky said he would like to call Acheson's attention to a passage from the Bible: "You should not try to catch fleas lest a camel slip through your fingers."

[British Foreign Secretary broke in to say he couldn't recall that passage in the King James version of the Bible. The Russian replied his source was the Russian version, as translated by Saint Vladimir. French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman suggested the flea question be referred to the deputies.—Editor's Note.]

Acheson's flea reference came at the close of a futile session of the Council of Foreign Ministers. Almost the entire session was devoted to what western officials said was a Soviet propaganda appeal to the Germans.

Vishinsky proposed Friday that the four big powers submit individual drafts of a new peace treaty to the Foreign Ministers within three months. The draft would provide for withdrawal of occupation forces of the Allied powers within a year after concluding the treaty. The Soviet proposal was the same the Russians had made at previous conferences in Moscow and London.

After their regular meeting, the Big Four Foreign Ministers stayed behind with their interpreters and one adviser each for a 90-minute secret session. They decided in the course of this meeting to adjourn the conference until Tuesday. The conference on Germany entered its fourth week today.

The closed meeting was devoted largely to discussing the future course of the conference, American sources said.

Vishinsky held the floor most of the day at the regular session. For the first time during the conferene, his sole object appeared to Western officials to be an appeal to the Germans from a propaganda viewpoint.

He accused the West of not wanting a German peace treaty because it is unwilling to accept Soviet proposals for drawing it up.

The Western position is that trying to draw up a treaty while the big powers are completely deadlocked on Germany unity and other questions is impossible.

The three Western Foreign Ministers appear to be driving to end the conference here by the end of this week. On the other hand, Vishinsky appeared to be trying to drag it out, perhaps with the view of making the West break off the discussions. Then he could charge them with not wanting an agreement. The Russians made similar charges after the futile London meeting in 1947.

Hickenlooper One

Iowa Parley Aims at Two GOP Senators

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Des Moines, Iowa, June 12.—Much of the strategy of this Democratic conference is being directed toward the defeat of two Republican Senators next year, Robert A. Taft and Bourke B. Hickenlooper.

Many top-ranking Administration chieftains—including Secretary of Agriculture Brannan—are here for the two-day conference of Democratic leaders from 16 Midwestern States. The purpose is to plan strategy for next year's congressional campaign in a broad agricultural area that promises to be a major battleground for control of the next Congress.

The defeat of Hickenlooper is high on the national Democratic schedule at this moment. His slashing attack upon David E. Lilienthal and the Atomic Energy Commission has had two results:

First, it has angered the Administration to the extent that his defeat has a No. 1 priority.

Easy to Beat, Democrats Feel

Second, the Lilienthal affair has so weakened Hickenlooper in his home State, that many Democrats are getting the idea he will be a pushover as easy to beat next year as his colleague, George A. Wilson, was last year. Wilson's defeat was the worst in history in a State where a Republican nomination had been considered tantamount to election.

There is no question that Hickenlooper kicked himself into the Iowa doghouse with his attack on Lilienthal. Iowans have been proud of the Atomic Energy Commission and their part in it. Much of the development was done at Iowa State College at Ames, near Des Moines. The Commission has built a big laboratory at Ames, where important research is being carried on.

One of Iowa's most respected citizens is William W. Waymack, former editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, who, until recently, was a co-member with Lilienthal on AEC. Iowans know that the commission members have equal authority, and therefore any attack for mismanagement upon Lilienthal is considered here an attack on Waymack, for whom Hickenlooper has always heretofore expressed great admiration.

Waymack Goes Fishing

Waymack hasn't said anything. Friends say he feels very deeply on the matter. But apparently in an effort to avoid being involved in the row, he is now headed toward a summer fishing cabin deep in the wilderness of Leach Lake, Minnesota. There he will be free from contact either by telephone or by visitors.

Waymack didn't return to his post on the Register, where, incidentally, he won among other awards the Pulitzer prize for journalism, but many observers see significance in the fact that the Register has been bitterly attacking Hickenlooper, editorially and in cartoons, since the Lilienthal affair began.

Important elements in Hickenlooper's own party are getting ready to dump him in next year's primaries — which, incidentally, are only 11 months off. To accomplish this they are urging Gov. William S. Beardsley to run against him. Reports are that Beardsley is ready to do so.

Beardsley has been in office only six months, but is extremely

Agree to Vote Tuesday

Berlin Rail Strikers Block Soviet-American Truce Plan

Berlin, June 12 (AP).—The Western Allies failed today in attempts to settle the Berlin railroad strike immediately and to get Russia to remove her remaining blockade restrictions on transport to the city.

Railroad union delegates booed and cat-called a Russian-American plan to end the strike.

Although refusing to accept the plan, they agreed to put it to a referendum of the 15,000 strikers Tuesday.

American, British, French and Russian transport and trade experts failed for the second straight day to reach agreement on ending the Soviet economic blockade.

They met for seven hours and western officials said the Russians persisted in their demands that they be permitted to keep complete control over transport between Berlin and the western occupation zones.

Another meeting of Allied experts will be held Monday, but there was little prospect of agreement.

"We had the same old disagreements and nothing was settled," American Transport Chief W. T. Cantrell said.

Western officials said the Russians insisted on moving freight trains into the city from the west only when they felt like it, and on issuing "licenses" for all goods moved to and from the city.

The Russians also insist that, as before the blockade started, trains running through their occupation zone to and from Berlin must be hauled by Soviet locomotives which will be driven by Russian-employed German engineers. The Russians seek in addition to operate only 16 trains a day to Berlin instead of the minimum of 20 the Western Allies ask.

The Big Four Foreign Ministers in Paris had instructed the commandants of their garrisons here to try to reach agreement on ending blockade restrictions by Monday. The feeling was that the commandants would have to confess failure.

The executive board of the non-Communist UGO, the striking railroad union, set Tuesday as the date for a referendum on the proposal to end the Berlin tieup after 600 union delegates shouted protests against the plan and demanded binding guarantees from the Russians on any agreement.

Top officials of the union and West Berlin Mayor Ernst Reuter urged acceptance of the plan, which was drafted by Brig. Gen. Frank Howley, the American commandant, on the basis of an offer by the Soviet administration which controls all Berlin rail traffic.

To Help Young Adults

Mellon Gives Yale and Vassar $4,000,000 for Psychiatry

New York, June 12 (NYHT).—Yale University and Vassar College announced today the receipt of gifts of two million dollars each from the Old Dominion Foundation of Washington, which is headed by Paul Mellon, son of the late Andrew W. Mellon, former Secretary of the Treasury.

The grant to Yale will be used to expand its program of psychiatric guidance for students, in which the school has done pioneer work.

The Vassar gift will establish the Mary Conover Mellon Fund for the advancement of education. It is in memory of Paul Mellon's wife, Mary Conover Mellon, a graduate of Vassar, who died in 1946.

Mellon was graduated from Yale in 1929.

Dr. Clements C. Fry, head of the division of psychiatry of the Yale department of health, said the object of the expanded program was to establish a permanent center for the mental study of young adults.

It will function as a center for the training of psychiatrists, physicians and social workers.

Income from the Vassar grant will be used to establish an extensive program of academic and personal advising for students.

Clark Says Reds in U. S. Are 'On Run'

Attorney General Asserts U. S. Wages Effective War On Alien Enemies

By the United Press

Attorney General Clark yesterday said the United States has the Communists "on the run." Alien subversives, he added, actually are "fleeing the country."

He said in a Gannett News Service interview, broadcast over all Gannett stations, that under President Truman the Government has been conducting the "biggest Communist cleanup in history."

Justice Department and FBI records indicate card-carrying Communists in this country "have become one-third smaller by number than three years ago," he said.

Asks Tighter Laws

"I am happy to see that the Communists are on the run—as a threat to Government, as an influence in labor, and as a political party.

"Under President Truman, more top-notch Communists have been convicted than during our entire history. They are being shipped back as fast as law and visa conditions permit.

"As a matter of fact, alien Communists are fleeing."

Clark added:

"Aside from officials and delegates from Communist countries, whom by law we must admit, I state as a fact—and not as a boast—that no subversives have been admitted into this country during Mr. Truman's Administration."

Clark again urged legislation to tighten immigration laws to deny bail to deportable aliens. He said present laws are "sound but not far-reaching enough." It is necessary to close "loopholes that handicap Government action," he said.

He denied emphatically "rumors" he will resign to set up a private law practice.

Traces "Communist Mess"

Listing the "subversive cases being tried all over the country" among the things on his "busy schedule," he said it appeared that the work facing him "will last for several years."

He traced the "Communist mess" back to pre-Roosevelt days when, he said, most of the "top-notch alien Communists" infiltrated into the United States. The "cleanup process began back in 1933 and now is going stronger than ever," he added.

Clark cited 63 separate convictions, trials and indictments involving 73 persons during the past year as evidence of the Government crackdown.

7-Pound Boy Born 6000 Feet Up As Stork Beats C-47

Long Beach, Calif., June 12 (AP).—A 7-pound boy was born 6000 feet in the air today.

The child was born in a C-47 plane to Mrs. Jean Fisch, 24, wife of Staff Sergt. Barney Fisch of the Muroc (Calif.) Air Force Base. They have three other children.

When the stork began beating its wings, Sergeant Fisch asked the Air Force to try to beat the bird to the Long Beach Naval Hospital where confinement arrangements had been made.

But the plane wasn't fast enough for the stork and the baby arrived over Los Angeles, somewhere between Burbank and Long Beach, five minutes before the plane was due to land at Long Beach Air Force Base.

The baby seemed in first class shape when the plane landed. Mrs. Fisch was doing fine, too.

'Demilitarization' Ordered

Truman Won't Push Plans For Stand-by War Powers

By The Associated Press

The Administration is sharply revising its peacetime planning for a possible future war and has decided against pressing Congress for early enactment of stand-by war powers.

These decisions were reported yesterday by responsible officials. They coincide with what one top official called a "quiet, demilitarization" of the National Security Resources Board.

The blunting of NSRB's teeth was accompanied by the departure of perhaps 100 officials from the 400-man agency, one high Government source reported privately.

NSRB is charged with planning the industrial and civilian mobilization of the country for any future war emergency.

The war powers bill, one of NSRB's major responsibilities, was conceived as a detailed mobilization act to become effective automatically on the declaration of a war emergency by Congress.

The bill never got to Congress, and officials yesterday told why: Mr. Truman has decided it would be inappropriate, and perhaps impossible, to attempt passage of such legislation in peacetime.

Instead, NSRB now is devoting itself to perfecting the bill and keeping it up to date in readiness for Capitol Hill. The Administration feels there need be no fears over prompt action by Congress if and when a war crisis comes.

'Trial' Business Calls Clark Back

Special to The Washington Post

Des Moines, Iowa, June 12.—Sudden, immediate and urgent business called Attorney General Clark back to Washington today, an hour after his arrival at the Democratic farm meeting.

Clark flew in from Topeka, Kans., with Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark, new Treasurer of the United States.

Within minutes it was announced Clark would leave right away. In a hurriedly called news conference he explained his haste was because of developments in a court case. "We have several very important ones on now," he added. He didn't enlarge on whether it was the Coplon trial, the Hiss trial or the Communist trial in New York. He admitted it was one of them.

N. Y. Printer Told FBI of Soviet Snub

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

A one-eyed printer who tried to make friends with the Russians in this country was called an "Amerikanski agent" by a Soviet official when he attended a Russian Embassy party here last November.

This was revealed in one of the 30-odd FBI documents introduced at the Judith Coplon trial, a check yesterday showed. The trial resumes in Federal Court here today.

The printer, once a proofreader on the Baltimore Sun, was Robert Lincoln Leslie of New York. In recent years he has turned to medicine and has been connected with the "American Review of Soviet Medicine."

Leslie, according to the FBI report, told one of J. Edgar Hoover's agents during an interview that he is now "persona non grata" with the Soviets. He said that he had not been invited to the Soviet reception last November 7, but that a friend, Dr. Julius Hyman, editor of the magazine, took him along.

"While they were there," the FBI report relates, "one of the Russians, namely Striganov, called Dr. Hyman aside and asked what he meant by bringing to the embassy 'an Amerikanski agent.' He told Dr. Hyman that Leslie had no right to be present. Therefore Leslie and Hyman left the reception and shortly afterwards returned by plane to New York."

Sergei R. Striganov was First Secretary of the Russian Embassy at the time and is so listed in the latest State Department diplomatic list.

Leslie told the FBI agent he had once been a registered Communist and had contacts with Russians in this country. But more recently the Soviet officials refused to cooperate with him "in any way" and stopped aiding the American Soviet Medical Society which published the magazine.

Another FBI report revealed the agency had, as of last December, a "confidential informant C-279 of known reliability who is familiar with the activities of the Russian Embassy personnel."

This informant told the FBI he had no information that any person in the Swiss legation here might be connected with Soviet intelligence activities. There was no indication whether the FBI had asked the informant to check on the possibility.

The informant noted that the Swiss counselor of embassy, Eric Kessler, had been in contact with

FBI Chief Repeats His No Comment Response

Widow Defends Kent's Patriotism; Wants to See Coplon Trial Judge

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

In a whiplashing attack on the FBI, Dr. Edward U. Condon last night declared "I do not choose to accept 'No comment' as an answer" to his demand that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover personally apologize to his wife.

It was Condon's second call on Hoover to apologize, if "he is man enough," for a reference to Mrs. Condon in a top-secret FBI report presented Friday in the Judith Coplon espionage trial.

At the same time, Mrs. Morton E. Kent, wife of a Washington business man mentioned in the same report, came to the defense of her husband, who committed suicide June 4.

"No one is safe," she said. "What are we coming to in this country? There's nobody who was more American than my husband."

Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, savagely attacked "the very heart of the general procedures of the FBI."

"This is an issue of the utmost importance, not only for my wife or myself, but for all Americans," he declared.

"Thousands of Americans have been caused great personal distress, fear, and loss of livelihood by procedures of the FBI, whereby gossip, rumor and hearsay are gathered from witnesses of unknown integrity or veracity—witnesses who, moreover, are never asked to face those whom they slander and whose very identities are kept secret.

"What this means is that any American can be slandered, his name ruined, his career blasted by any other person who chooses to relay malicious gossip to the FBI."

Coplon Lawyer Plans To Subpena Condons

Dr. Edward U. Condon and his wife will be subpenaed as defense witnesses in the Judith Coplon espionage trial, Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer said last night.

Palmer said he wanted Condon to show that "it's a bunch of nonsense about Russia stealing the atom bomb—just like these spy charges against Judith Coplon are a bunch of nonsense."

He said he wanted Mrs. Condon in order to show "the dirty gossip, backyard gossip, barroom gossip that go into FBI reports."

MacArthur Says Soviets Incite Disorder In Japan

Tokyo (Monday), June 13 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today issued a formal statement naming Russia as "an inciter of disorder and violence in an otherwise orderly Japanese society."

The supreme commander's remarks were phrased in an official answer to a note from Lieut. Gen. Kuzma Derevyanko, Soviet member of the Allied Council for Japan, protesting alleged Japanese police "suppression" of trade union demonstrations in May.

MacArthur said the purpose of the Soviet letter was "to incite irresponsible and unruly minority elements in Japan to violence and disorderly resistance against the duly constituted government of Japan and the lawful orders and processes thereof with a view to creating confusion, unrest and bewilderment in the ranks of the Japanese masses."

He added the note was meant to "screen the Soviets' unconscionable failure to abide by requirements of international law and their specific Potsdam commitments in the return of over 400,000 Japanese citizens, long held in bondage, to their homeland."

Stand to Be Taken By Chambers' Wife

Trial's 8th Week

Miss Coplon Feels Sure Of Acquittal

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 12.—Mrs. Whittaker Chambers, wife of the apostate Communist underground worker who accuses Alger Hiss of betraying State Department secrets, Monday will return to the witness stand in the Hiss perjury trial.

A principal supporter of her husband's charges, the thin-faced, 48-year-old Mrs. Chambers is expected to face exhaustive cross-examination by Chief Defense Attorney Lloyd Paul Stryker in challenge of the testimony she gave Friday.

At that time, she supported Chambers' declarations which form one of the two perjury counts against Hiss: That Chambers saw him after January 1, 1947, which Hiss denied before a Federal grand jury.

The second count in the indictment charges that Hiss, while an assistant to Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre in early 1938, gave Chambers secret documents for a Communist spy ring of which Hiss was a willing member.

She Is 27th Witness

As the trial of the lean, 44-year-old Hiss today enters its third week, the key elements of the case remain basically unchanged from the date of Hiss' indictment last December 15.

The prosecution has sought to embellish them to some extent with a long line of witnesses, of which Mrs. Chambers is the twenty-seventh, but has not yet attempted to tie together this testimoney to substantiate Chambers' accusations.

Held to cross-examination up to this point in the trial, attorneys for Hiss have concentrated upon portraying Chambers as an easy liar with mental and moral aberrations whose word and charges are worthless.

Chambers, who declares he renounced his activities as a courier for the spy ring in April, 1938, and began an "honest" life leading to a $30,000-a-year senior editor post at Time magazine, admitted many lies during his seven days on the witness stand.

But these acknowledged falsehoods extended only to concealing in earlier testimony his charges that Hiss aided him in espionage, in addition to being a Communist. He withheld these espionage accusations from the House Committee on Un-American Activities, and from early sessions of the Federal grand jury which indicted Hiss, in order not to damage Hiss "any more than necessary," Chambers declared.

In his appearances before those investigative bodies, and in pre-trial depositions taken in a $75,000 libel suit he filed against Chambers, Hiss vehemently denied Chambers' allegations that he was a Communist or a participant in espionage. Because of the three-year statute of limitations, neither Chambers nor Hiss can be charged with espionage.

Recognizes Handwriting

Hiss has admitted that documents he examined, which Chambers says he kept hidden away for 10 years, were similar to those which passed across his desk in the State Department. Hiss says at least three of four handwritten documents in Chambers' possession are in his (Hiss) handwriting.

He knew Chambers, starting in 1934, as a free-lance writer named "George Crosley," Hiss states, lent him money several times, gave him an old Ford roadster, and once sublet an apartment to Chambers and his family without being repaid.

That, in essence, was the substance of his relations with Chambers, states Hiss, completely denying that he was introduced by Chambers to a Russian agent named Col. Boris Bykov, when Chambers says Hiss agreed to supply documents which were copied by Mrs. Hiss on a typewriter in the Hiss home.

During the middle of this week, the prosecution expects to complete the presentation of its case, and the defense will then take over, possibly with Hiss as chief witness.

The first phase is about over and the trial of Judith Coplon should enter the second this week.

Possibly today the Government will rest its case against the suspended Department of Justice employe charged with copying secret FBI files to pass along to Russia.

In her hotel room last night the Barnard College honor graduate said she was "completely confident" of ultimate vindication.

Others to Be Called

"When I take the stand," she said, "I'm certain my innocence of the charges against me will be proved."

But before she actually does take the stand defense attorney Archibald Palmer is expected to call several other witnesses.

These, he has announced, will include Chief Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., and his assistant, Raymond P. Whearty, Miss Coplon's former chief in the Foreign Agents Registration Section.

A subpena is also out for FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover or one of his top assistants.

Palmer has indicated two dramatic defenses for Miss Coplon:

When she saw the Russian U. N. engineer, Valentin Gubitchev, on weekends in New York it was not as a spy but as a girl in love or falling in love with a man she did not know already had a wife.

Little and Big Affected

When she copied from secret FBI documents it was not to betray her country but to gather material for a novel.

No trial in memory has reached down into the lives of so many persons, little and great, as that which began seven weeks ago in the tiny District courtroom at 5th and F sts. nw.

It has done so largely because of Judge Albert L. Reeves' momentous ruling that the secret FBI documents behind the 34 data slips allegedly found in Miss Coplon's purse must be introduced in evidence.

The ruling led to the compilation one day alone of the trial—this last Friday—of what must be one of the most gargantuan records in court history.

Only Extracts Found

No accurate estimate is yet possible, but it may run to between a quarter and half million words for the one day alone, most of the words from the documents, some of them the length of short novels.

The documents themselves were not found in Miss Coplon's purse—only the short slips containing extracts from them.

One prediction when the trial started was that it would run four days. Monday will start the eighth week.

Man Rescued After Mattress Burns in Fire

Raymond Peters, 33, a steamfitter, was rescued from his burning apartment yesterday by Mount Rainier and Brentwood volunteer firemen.

A neighbor saw smoke coming from his apartment on the second floor of 4305 Kaywood dr., Kaywood Gardens, Mount Rainier, Md., and called firemen. The firemen broke in through a window and found the mattress on which Peters was lying was on fire. They extinguished the blaze and sent him to Prince Georges General Hospital, Cheverly, in the Brentwood Rescue Squad ambulance.

Peters had a cut foot from stepping on a broken glass in the kitchen. Bloody footprints were tracked over the floor of the apartment. A number of cigarette butts lay beside the bed. He apparently had been smoking in bed and was overcome by smoke when the mattress caught fire, firemen said.

4 Killed When Plane Crashes in Storm

Perham, Minn., June 12 (AP).—Four Kansans were killed when their small plane crashed in flames in a storm today.

Officials tentatively identified the dead as C. D. Clark, about 40; Frank E. Hannigan, jr., the pilot, about 26; W. A. Morris, about 40, and Paul Stewart, about 38. All were from Great Bend, Kans.

The men were en route home from Bemidji, Minn., where they had been fishing.

Draws Nation's Highest Salary

HIGHEST PAID—Charles P. Skouras, Greek-born movie theater magnate yesterday was listed by the Treasury as America's highest-paid corporation employe in 1947. He got $810,000. It was his third straight year at the top. Betty Grable, of the films, was the highest-paid woman in the United States with $208,000

Condon Again Asks Apology

to Mrs. Condon, last night again responded, "No comment."

The document that aroused Condon's fury said that "an informant of the above informant"—the last referring to "Confidential Informant T-1"—"has indicated that Emily Condon and Morton Kent have met concerning Sotirov, at which time Kent was furnished with Sotirov's address in New York."

Sotirov, a U. N. employe, was under suspicion as a possible Russian intelligence agent.

Kent was employed at the Addressograph-Multigraph Corp. and police attributed his suicide to the loss of his job shortly before.

An official of the company defended Kent Friday, saying he probably was trying to contact Sotirov to sell him some equipment.

Mrs. Kent, who lives at 301 Cumberland ave., Chevy Chase, said last night: "I'm going to see that judge if it's the last thing I do. He said, 'I'll take the responsibility . . .'"

The documents from secret FBI files got into the Coplon trial over vigorous prosecution objections when Judge Albert L. Reeves ruled they are essential to the defense of the suspended Department of Justice girl.

In his statement, Condon tore into the manner in which FBI reports are compiled.

"It does no good to say that the FBI never expected to make this report public," he averred. "Either one of two things is true:

"The FBI regarded this as a matter of no importance, in which case the report should not be in the files, or should be clearly indicated as being of no value at all.

Attacks Reports' Use

"Or the FBI regards this as a matter of some importance, in which case they have scandalously neglected their duty in having only an 'unevaluated report.'"

He attacked "the uses to which these reports are put—ranging from official use in the Government to reputation-slandering leaks to certain segments of the press."

The FBI, he said, states that the report was not evaluated. But, he declared:

"The very fact that an innocent act is linked to other alleged facts about other individuals and that this selected set of facts is filed in an official report, constitutes evaluation of a most grave and dangerous kind."

Printer Friendly to Russians Told FBI They Snubbed Him

Soviet officials but he thought that was for official business only.

One file included reports on a Washington attorney, James Russell Murphy, former executive officer to Col. William J. Donovan at the war-time Office of Strategic Services.

The report, highly complimentary to Murphy, includes the fact that the attorney himself furnished information "concerning an individual who was alleged to be a Communist and who was then (May, 1947) employed by the Central Intelligence Group."

Murphy apparently entered the file because he was considered "a close friend" of another person under investigation.

Other of the many reports behind the "data slips" allegedly found in the Justice Department employe's purse when she was arrested told of extensive FBI activities, many of them up to January of this year.

Throughout them all were reports from "informants," "a highly confidential source," "special employes" and FBI agents themselves. Some of the reports were marked "closed" and others are still "pending."

In one case the FBI report commented unfavorably on information received from an informant in these words:

"Much of the information received by this office (San Francisco) from Informant G has been later shown to be highly exaggerated and when Informant G has been questioned concerning this he has at times admitted that certain of the things that he states as facts were merely his opinion."

One FBI report of the "pending" variety concerned a William J. Ragin of Baltimore, who had a habit of flashing $1000 bills, boasting about contact with the Russian Embassy and had an interest in photography, including "a wide angle lens for taking pictures through keyholes."

This 17-page report made last November details Ragin's history as a toolmaker since he came here from Russia at the time of the revolution. The investigation stemmed from a complaint by Winters Jones, proprietor of the Maryland Precision Instrument and Optical Co. of Baltimore, who reported he made statements "not in sympathy with our form of Government."

But the only specific statement Jones could recall, the FBI report states, was "the American dollar is not worth anything."

Ragin once was questioned by the FBI about his employment at Philadelphia's Frankfort Arsenal. He said he often left the arsenal, the FBI reported, "with classified prints and documents, taking them to his home to study."

A Baltimore landlady reported Ragin went out mostly at night and developed a lot of pictures in his room. It was Jones who reported Ragin's interest in keyhole photography. Many informants said he flashed $1000-bills and one said he wore a $10,000 diamond ring.

A lunchroom owner said Ragin told him he worked in Washington for the Government, commuting from Baltimore.

A report made last December concerned the Soviet film agency, Artkino Pictures, which handles Russian films in this country. Much of it was a list of such films, taken from the Daily Worker, New York Communist newspaper.

It centered around the activities of Nicholas Napoli, president of Artkino, and said he met "leading Peruvian Communists" while in that country to arrange for film distribution.

A "confidential informant" told the FBI Napoli made a date in 1946 to see the Soviet vice-consul in New York and two other informants told of his trip to Mexico and Peru.

An FBI informant reported that in October, 1947, he saw one of the Soviet films at the Communist Party's district headquarters in St. Louis, Mo.

"Informant states the film failed to note that it was in the nature of propaganda or that it had been registered with any department of the United States Government," the report added.

Still another report concerned Dr. Aramais Akob Hovsepian of Los Angeles who, according to "Los Angeles T-1 who was in a position to observe," was chummy with members of the Soviet consulate for two years, 1945-47.

A California Yugoslav-American, Nicholas George Nicholas, was the subject of another FBI report.

Confidential informant SF-1522, who, the FBI report stated was personally acquainted with Nicholas for years, reported he was a Communist Party member. This agent also said Nicholas was a close friend of Joseph Kerpan, a postoffice employe in San Francisco, and that Nicholas had promised to get Kerpan a job at the Yugoslav consulate if he lost his postoffice position.

An ex-Army private named William H. Sanders, in 1946 a GI student at Columbia University, New York, was the subject of another searching report.

Sanders got into the FBI files because an Italian girl named Lidia Pavil de Pavigli said she had an agreement to come to this country to marry him. The Italian police, however, suspected her of being a Yugoslav agent. The FBI added, succinctly:

"DePavigli was the mistress of a man employed by the Allies as an undercover agent, who was suspected of actually being a double agent."

Still another FBI report concerned a San Francisco dressmaker, Clara Juravcoff (with 35 aliases), who was reported in 1947 to have declared "that the USSR would take over the United States and that Stalin was the 'saviour of the world.'"

House Probers Draw Protest From Schools

By The Associated Press

A spot check by the House Un-American Activities Committee for Red propaganda in school books drew strong protests from educators yesterday.

Edmund Ezra Day, president of Cornell University, declared "a witch hunt is developing in this country."

Dr. George F. Zook, president of the American Council on Education, wrote the committee that the survey raises "very grave issues." He said the council is hiring a lawyer to advise it. The National Education Association has questioned the committee's staff.

And the committee itself said a college president has written it that "if you requested even one book it would be considered an infringement upon academic freedom."

The committee has picked at random some 70 schools and cities and asked them to send in lists of textbooks in general use in schools from the grades up to colleges.

In spite of the various protests, committee officials said school boards are "cooperating 100 per cent" and letters of praise are coming in from lawyers and other private citizens.

What the committee wants to find out is whether any Red propaganda has crept into textbooks in general use in schools.

Its requests for textbook title lists went most to larger cities, but also to various institutions of higher learning such as Yale, Cornell, Michigan and a number of small teachers' colleges.

The committee insists it is making no investigation and that it definitely will not tread on academic freedom. Just the same, it has stirred up a flurry of alarm among educational organizations.

Stockholder Group Attacks Fairchild Co. Directorate

A group of stockholders in the Fairchild Engine & Airplane Co., charged yesterday that they were not consulted on approval of a life pension for the board chairman, J. Carlton Ward, jr. They said they will try to oust the company's directors at a meeting July 6.

The "committee of stockholders," headed by Sherman M. Fairchild, founder of the company, got Securities and Exchange Commission approval Friday to solicit proxies for a new annual meeting of shareholders July 6.

The group charges that the company has come under "one man domination" by Ward. They said the directors last year granted him a new contract under which he could retire with a $32,500-a-year life pension, and at the same time voted to decline to pay any dividend. The stockholders, they stated, were not consulted on either issue.

Philip Murray Blasts AT&T

Chicago, June 12 (AP).—Philip Murray, president of the CIO, tonight said the American Telephone and Telegraph Company "is the most vicious monopoly in America."

"They may go to hell with my compliments," the union chief added.

Addressing a convention banquet of the CIO Telephone Workers Organizing Committee, he said:

"I don't often run amok, but I'd take on AT&T tomorrow. Walter S. Gifford, chairman of the board of directors of AT&T, is made of the same clay as any telephone worker or any other citizen of the United States."

Murray accused the company of attempting to break the phone workers' union by treating contracts "which I consider sacred, as scraps of paper."

Coplon Trial 'Slur' Denied

Great Neck, N. Y., June 12 (U.P.)—Irina I. Aleksander today denied any misconduct as implied by evidence brought out in the Washington trial of Judith Coplon. She said she would welcome a complete investigation of her activities and associations.

Reports to the FBI, brought out at the trial, said Mrs. Aleksander was described by an informer as "extremely friendly with officials of the Russian Consulate in New York."

Another report quoted an anonymous lette rnaming her as a Soviet agent in Yugoslavia and Austria before coming to the United States and said she caused her first husband, a Russian officer, to be executed.

Mrs. Aleksander issued this statement:

"I categorically deny all slanderous allegations published in some newspapers about me in connection with the Judith Coplon case.

"I deeply resent this libelous attack on my integrity and shall wholeheartedly welcome a full and complete investigation of my activities and associations and ask that the results of a factual and objective investigation he reported instead of anonymous letters and personal malicious gossip."

Body of Missing Nun Recovered from River

Thompsonville, Conn., June 12 (U.P.)—The body of Sister Marcella, 55, missing from Our Lady of the Angels Convent at Enfield since Thursday night, was recovered today from the Connecticut River, a short distance from where her two prayer books and other belongings were found.

Medical Examiner Howard Gourlie said death was caused by drowning under "undetermined circumstances."

The ailing nun had been confined to the convent hospital.

Oaths Prove A Headache For Denham

By The Associated Press

Robert N. Denham, the Government official who receives non-Communist affidavits from labor leaders, yesterday made this urgent plea to Congress:

"If these affidavits are to be required of corporation officers, too, please give us some definition of 'officer.'"

He said that unless some limits are imposed, there will be "an administrative burden that simply cannot be carried."

Larger corporations, he said, have "literally hundreds" of employes whose titles would identify them as officers—"banks for example, have more vice-presidents than you can shake three sticks at."

Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, told a reporter that legislators are "simply not giving enough study" to that problem.

The Senate is about to start the second week of its debate over changing the Taft-Hartley law. The Senators seem almost certain to approve a provision requiring both unions and employers to file affidavits if they want to do business with the NLRB.

Under the Taft-Hartley law, only union officers are required to do this. More than 100,000 have filed the oaths.

Denham said his office and the five-man board have had a hard job determining who are union "officers" because the law was not clear on a number of points.

Banks Given as Example

Denham said that if the requirement is extended to company "officers"—without adequate clarification—the problem will be almost impossibly complex.

Berkeley, Calif., June 12 (AP).—The University of California, third largest in the country, has decided reluctantly to require loyalty oaths by all full-time faculty members and administrators. A spokesman today blamed "cold war hysteria."

The university has a registration of approximately 48,000 students on eight campuses, exceeded only by New York University (49,450) and possibly City College, New York (48,337).

Dr. George A. Pettitt, assistant to University President Robert Gordon Sproul, said he didn't believe any teachers would refuse to sign the oath. But at least one faculty member said he "rather imagines there will be opposition." Faculty members will discuss the oath in a meeting Tuesday afternoon with Dr. Sproul.

"We don't like the idea of oaths; nobody does," Pettitt told newsmen today. 'But in the face of the 'cold war hysteria' we are now experiencing, something had to be done."

Johnson Acting To Unify Doctors In Armed Forces

New York, June 12 (AP).—Secretary of Defense Johnson said today no sector of American life feels the shortage of doctors "more acutely than do our Armed Forces."

Johnson spoke at dedication week ceremonies at Yeshiva University.

He blamed the shortage of military doctors partly on these three past shortcomings: Faulty distribution of available doctors in military service, failure to get "maximum efficient use of the doctors we had," and lack of unified medical policies among the three armed services.

To try to correct these faults, he said, a director of medical services for the National Military Establishment is being assigned.

General Lauds Great Heritage of America At Elks' Ceremonies Honoring Flag Day

The Washington Post

PLENTY OF SEATS—Not more than 125 persons were estimated to have attended annual Flag Day services sponsored by Washington Elks yesterday, with numerous other organizations participating. This picture was taken in the Sylvan Theater, scene of the ceremonies.

The American heritage "is our real wealth," Maj. Gen. Eugene M. Foster said yesterday at the Washington Elks' annual Flag Day observance.

General Foster, Chief of Finance, United States Army, was the principal speaker at exercises sponsored by Washington Lodge No. 15 in Sylvan Theater on the Washington Monument grounds. Twenty-one other patriotic organizations participated.

Tuesday is officially Flag Day, and other exercises sponsored by the Department of the Potomac. Women's Relief Corps of the Grand Army of the Republic, will be at 7:30 p. m. on the east steps of the Capitol.

Marshall Plan Lauded

General Foster, addressing an audience of about 125, said that "of all the wealth that we have inherited and produced, there is one wealth that stands out above all others, our heritage."

Referring to the Marshall Plan, he said it "may be a tax burden, but it will save us more in expenditures for war. It is an expenditure for peace."

John E. Lynch, past exalted ruler of Washington Lodge, spoke on the history of the flag, which he said was "as interesting as the evolution of the American Government."

Francis B. Myers, exalted ruler of the lodge, presided at the exercises. Brig. Gen. John W. Oehmann, retired, introduced General Foster, and Lieut. (j. g.) Theodore R. Hartley, USN, spoke on the United States Treasury's bond drive.

Boys Band on Program

Massing of the colors by patriotic oranizations, ritualistic ceremonies and music by the Elks Boys Band were other features of the program, which concluded with "America," led by Florence E. Daley.

Col. Lawrence R. Dewey of the National College faculty, will be chief speaker at the exercises Tuesday.

President Truman and the District Commissioners have issued proclamations calling for suitable observance of Flag Day and displaying the flag.

Lilienthal Got Careless, Says Sen. Tydings

By The Associated Press

Senator Tydings (D., Md.) said yesterday Chairman David E. Lilienthal had failed to take enough care in safekeeping Atomic Energy Commission secrets.

Tydings is a member of the Senate-House Atomic Committee investigating Lilienthal's administration.

He said in a radio interview he thinks the AEC chairman has not been "as judicious as we have a right to expect of one who has charge of such an important agency, an operation that affects the life and welfare of all of us."

"My own particular criticism of him," Tydings said, "is that I don't believe he has shown as much care in looking after the security end of his job as I think the chairman of the commission ought to show and practice in the matter."

Tydings added, however, that he thinks "in many respects Mr. Lilienthal has done a good job." He said he wants to keep his mind "reasonably open" until all the facts of the committee's inquiry come out.

His statement came as the committee prepared to open a third week of hearings tomorrow into charges by Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), of "incredible mismanagement" against Lilienthal.

McMahon announced that Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, chairman of AEC's general advisory committee and former director of the Los Alamos (N. M.) Weapons Laboratory, will testify in the forenoon.

Israeli Troops Drive Arabs From Village

Use of Hoover Transcriptions Called Despicable But Legal

By the United Press

Republican use of Herbert Hoover transcripts for political purposes is "despicable" but can't be stopped by law, Senator Johnson (D., Colo.), said yesterday.

Johnson is chairman of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee which writes radio law. He said in answer to questions that any attempt to ban or limit the use of radio transcriptions would violate free speech.

"Public opinion and individual good taste are the only ways it can be kept within the bounds of human decency," he added.

Johnson referred to the recent Democratic complaint that the Republicans used parts of a radio interview with former President Hoover to put a political slant on Government reorganization plans proposed by the bipartisan commission which Hoover headed.

Johnson said there is no law against the use of recorded quotations, in part or in full. The Federal Communications Commission's only rule on the subject is that transcribed programs be labeled as such so that the listener will not get the idea he is hearing live talent.

"Deliberate Distortion," He Says

"But in this case," Johnson said, "it is a despicable thing because it destroys the work of the Hoover Commission and is a deliberate distortion of what he had to say.

"Mr. Hoover approached this work on a high plane of nonpartisanship in an effort to help the Government. The Republicans have sabotaged it by pushing it into the political arena and by giving it a political implication."

Mr. Hoover himself issued a statement that no one has a "moral right to rebroadcast them in part with additions of their own." He said that would "distort their objectivity and non-partisianship."

6 Children Die in Fire While Parents Are Away

Firthcliffe, N. Y., June 12 (AP).—Six children died early today in a flash fire that gutted their home while their parents were away.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Zagorski, they were Bertha, 10; Albert, 6; Patricia, 5; Toni, 4; Jeanette, 2½, and Catherine, 6 months.

The parents had gone to visit Mrs. Zagorski's mother, also of Firthcliffe.

British Dock Strike Ends

London, June 12 (U.P.).—Striking Liverpool dock workers voted today to return to their jobs, but railroad engineers and firemen defied the government and struck for the fourth straight Sunday, snarling rail traffic between London and north England and Scotland.

The 2000 longshoremen, who tied up almost 100 vessels in Liverpool Harbor, voted to return after Labor Minister George Isaacs told them they were being used by Communists to disrupt trade and delay recovery.

Other dockers still are striking at Bristol and other west coast ports, however.

Isaacs also appealed to the trainmen to halt their Sunday-only strikes on Britain's nationalized railways, but here he ran into determined opposition.

There also was a possibility the workers would demand a nationwide strike at a special conference of the National Union of Railwaymen later this week.

The railroad strike threat was made the first item on the agenda of the cabinet's meeting Monday. Even the present once-a-week work stoppage is causing increasing anxiety in the government.

It was the fourth straight Sunday the railroad men on these lines have stopped work.

Briton Claims Rocket Defense

London, June 12 (U.P.).—One of the world's leading authorities on antiaircraft defense said today he has worked out an effective defense against long-range rockets.

Gen. Sir Frederick Pile, chief of Britain's antiaircraft defense during World War II, said he had found a method even before the end of the war for shooting down German V-2 rockets.

The plan never was put into operation, Pile said in an article in the Sunday Reynolds-News, because the problem never became acute enough during the German V-2 bombardment of southern England.

Pile said details were still too secret to be disclosed in full but that "obviously it entailed predicting the point of fall of the rockets (with radar) and firing the London antiaircraft guns to burst their shells in their path."

Our Greatest Asset: YOUTH

by A. N. SPANEL, Chairman
International Latex Corporation

This month, an event of incalculable national importance is taking place . . . an event that will have a profound effect on every community, every city, every state, every business and profession in our country. Specifically, a million three hundred thousand young men and women will be graduating from the high schools of America; and over three hundred thousand more will be graduating from 1,238 universities and colleges. Significantly, a hundred and fifty thousand of these college graduates will be men, over 70% of whom are veterans of World War II.

Here is the wealth of a nation in its richest form. Here they are—young men and women trained to THINK and eager for work. They are the richest asset this country possesses and the poorest prospect for the rabble rouser.

These new graduates have the youth, the energy, the mentality and ambition to make useful, productive places for themselves in the system under which they were raised and trained . . . a system in which they place their faith. All they want is the chance to make their contribution of skills and knowledge to the free society in which they grew up.

It is therefore of utmost importance to our nation and way of life that they be given the job opportunities they deserve. We know all too well what job scarcity did to thousands of our best trained young minds during the last depression. They became victims of many spurious doctrines that promised just about everything this side of heaven. Disillusioned and frustrated young people who walk the streets jobless in the richest nation on earth don't find themselves glorifying the Bill of Rights, the Constitution or our free enterprise system. A nation courts disaster when its young people begin to examine, with bitterness and contempt and a sense of foregone defeat, its entire economic structure in the hope of changing it, often to suit the proddings or urgings of the agitator who has an ideological axe to grind.

In terms of personal need and the needs of our nation, employment now is of first priority. America cannot again afford the frustration, the bitterness and the hopelessness that great numbers of young people experienced during the '30s. In such an atmosphere, the fear of disaster flourishes.

Fortunately for all of us, we are not now anywhere near a steep or critical depression. On the contrary, there are indications that American business is settling down to somethings like a peacetime level. A summary of the published reports of the profits of 300 companies for the first quarter this year reveals that their net profits are 9% above last year's corresponding period. Admittedly, this picture does not reflect business as a whole, yet with a measure of vision and drive on the part of American business and professional people, job opportunities now for these new graduates of our high schools and colleges can be provided, and without governmental assistance. In the end, these very businesses and professions will profit immeasurably from the fresh thought and energy our young people will bring to them.

Right now, every individual employer, every member of the skilled professions, and every business and industrial organization in America has the opportunity to exert influence to help provide employment for the youth of America, the nation's greatest asset. This kind of effort in a democracy pays dividends, not merely for years, but for generations.

Heavy Trieste Vote Looks Bad for Reds

Strong Opposition

Europe Arms Face Delay, Taft Believes

By the United Press

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said yesterday that "determined opposition" in Congress to the arms-for-Europe program may block any action this year.

Democratic leaders are hesitant to bring the issue to a showdown even though President Truman said Saturday that it was of "vital importance" in strengthening free nations against the threat of aggression.

Mr. Truman will soon ask Congress to approve $1,450,000,000 of military equipment to the Atlantic Pact signatories, Greece, Turkey and a few other "free nations." But his top lieutenants in Congress thus far have made no promises of action before the summer recess.

Meanwhile, the Administration faces another major test on new operating funds for the European Recovery Program. Despite Mr. Truman's plea against reductions, Chairman McKellar (D., Tenn.) of the Senate Appropriations Committee said he believed "about" one billion dollars—almost 25 per cent—could be cut out.

Taft, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said that, so far as he is concerned, there is "no necessity of even considering the arms plan." And he observed that "there seems to be determined opposition to it, so it may go over until the next session."

But he said he would vote for ratification of the Atlantic Pact from which the arms program springs. Pointing to assurances given last week by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, he said that a Senator could support the 12-nation anti-aggression treaty without a commitment for the arms plan.

Trieste, June 12 (NYHT).—Residents of this troubled city at one border between the Communist and non-Communist parts of the world flocked to the polls peacefully today in huge numbers to vote in the city's first free election since 1922.

The voting was to fill the 60 seats on the City Council, which were contested by about a dozen parties and political blocs, including all the Italian non-Communist groups and the pro-Cominform Italian Communists and the pro-Tito Yugoslav Communists.

The great size of the vote was interpreted by most political observers as evidence the people voted in effect against communism and for return of Trieste to Italy.

Scores of invalids were carried to the polls on stretchers. Other scores came hundreds of miles to cast ballots. More than 300 crewmen of the Italian steamship Saturnia crossed Italy from Genoa to vote.

Election directors estimated from 85 to 90 per cent would go to the polls before they closed at 10 p. m. The ballots will not be counted until Monday.

The mayor of Trieste, Michele Miani, said he was certain "the overwhelming majority" cast ballots for Trieste's reunion with Italy.

'Force' Threat Made in Ruhr Dismantling

Berlin, June 12 (AP).—The British Commissioner of the Ruhr warned today that German resistance to dismantling of four synthetic oil plants would be answered with "force."

Maj. Gen. W. H. A. Bishop, in a broadcast from Cologne, said dismantling will start Monday.

"It is my duty," he said, "to issue a solemn warning that resistance to the entry of operations of the dismantling workers is resistance to the orders of the British military government. If this resistance is maintained, I shall have no alternative to immediately closing down these plants and, if necessary, to employing that degree of force which is required to achieve this end."

Workmen forming a "human wall" prevented dismantling from getting under way last week.

General Bishop said he would do everything in his power to find other jobs for men whom dismantling rendered unemployed.

Cardinal Asks Prayers To Stop Dismantling

Cologne, Germany, June 12 (U.P.). — Joseph Cardinal Frings, Archbishop of Cologne, told his Catholic faithful today to pray for the end of Allied dismantling of German factories at every mass they attend.

Tito's Light Mood Matches Uniform

Yugoslavs Say Czechs Cutting All Trade Ties

Belgrade, June 12 (NYHT).—Economic pressure by the Communist Information Bureau on the government of Premier Marshal Tito culminated today in an announcement here that trade relations between Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia are breaking down. The announcement meant the Cominform is severing Yugoslavia's last important economic tie with the Eastern bloc.

It was the first definite indication Czechoslovakia has joined the Cominform trade blockade against the Belgrade government.

Previously, the Yugoslavs charged the Czechs were delaying deliveries and were providing inferior goods under agreement between the two countries, but officials in Belgrade and Prague have denied to reporters all winter Czechoslovakia was participating in the Cominform squeeze on Marshall Tito.

Borba, organ of the Yugoslav Communist Party, said today the conduct of Czech authorities at negotiations in Prague last week showed the Czechs are unwilling to honor their responsibilities under existing agreements and that "normal trade" between the two countries is being made "impossible" by the Prague regime.

At the negotiations, according to Borba, the Czechs arbitrarily insisted the Yugoslavs increase their export of non-ferrous metals to Czechoslovakia by 600 per cent over 1948.

This charge recalled Marshall Tito's accusations Russia and the Cominform were trying to bleed Yugoslavia of its resources with indifference to the Belgrade government's attempts to raise the Yugoslav standard of living by increased industrialization.

Tobin Cites U. S. Stake in Secure World

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 12 (U.P.).—Maurice J. Tobin, Secretary of Labor, said today the United States has a gigantic stake in the worldwide struggle for freedom and economic security.

He told the graduating class of St. John's University that this country is "not altogether unselfish" in sending recovery aid abroad under the Marshall Plan.

"We know that our economy cannot endure in a world of economic ruin," he said. 'We know that a good anchor for our future economy is a sound world economy."

He said the Communists are wrong when they 'interpret the history of society as exclusively the history of class struggles.

"The economic history of society," he said, "is based largely on the invention of new tools and new aids to making things," and in this respect, the United States has been "thrice blessed."

ECA Lists 1950 Crude Oil Needs

By The Associated Press

European Recovery Program nations will require imports of more than one million barrels of crude oil and refined products daily during fiscal 1950, but less than half will come from the United States.

In a "petroleum and petroleum equipment commodity study," the Economic Cooperation Administration said Western Europe's needs will be about 52,700,000 metric tons, of which American oil companies are expected to provide about 21,800,000 tons.

ECA's estimates were much lower than those reported by the Organization for European Economic Cooperation in Paris—its recovery counterpart abroad.

OEEC, composed of representatives of the 19 ERP nations, estimated 1950 import requirements at 54 million metric tons, of which 23,150,000 would come from dollar areas.

Nine Virginia Communities Vote Tuesday

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

Mayors and councils will be chosen in nine nearby Virginia communities Tuesday, with principal interest centering on spirited contests in Alexandria and Falls Church.

Besides the two city elections, town council and mayoralty contests are slated in the towns of Herndon in Fairfax County; Manassas, Quantico, Occoquan and Haymarket in Prince William County; Leesburg in Loudoun County, and Warrenton in Fauquier.

In the Alexandria election, 12 candidates are seeking the seven city council posts. The councilman polling the highest vote takes over as mayor. With two Republicans and three independents opposing seven Decocratic nominees, it marks the first time in the memory of veteran political observers the traditionally-powerful Democratic party has faced opposition in a council election.

The candidates are:

Democrats Leroy S. Bendheim, Roy C. Bragg, Marshall J. Beverly, Albert A. Smoot, R. Samuel Luckett, all incumbents, and James M. Duncan, jr., and Franklin P. Backus.

Republican—Nathan J. Paulson and Clyde J. Verkerke.

Independent — Mayo Edwin Barrett, F. Clinton Knight and Lesley B. Mayer.

In Falls Church

In Falls Church, a mayor and nine-member council will be chosen from a field of 13 candidates. Mayor Albert M. Orme is unopposed for reelection, but all other incumbents who have elected to run again face opposition. Three councilmen will be chosen from each of the city's three wards.

The lineup of candidates in the nonpartisan balloting:

First Ward—Sherman Wells, incumbent, and James E. Durant, a former councilman and D. Kemper Grille.

Second Ward—J. H. McCarthy and Samuel H. McCrary, incumbents, and Mrs. Dillon S. Myer, Albert K. Hovey-King and J. Hendricks Marr.

Third Ward—John C. McRae, Boyd Case and Lee M. Rhoads, all incumbents, and Mandley T. Rust.

Both Alexandria and Falls Church will ballot on daylight saving time, from 7:30 a. m. to 8:30 p. m. In the other communities, voting will be governed by standard time, with the polls open from 6:30 a. m. to 7:30 p. m.

Polio Epidemic Of '48 Worst Since 1916

New York, June 12 (U.P.)—The epidemic of infantile paralysis in the United States last year was the worst since 1916, with 27,894 new cases reported, it was revealed today.

Starting with four cases in the southernmost part of Texas in March, the disease swept the Nation and wreaked its greatest damage in California, Iowa, North Carolina and Texas.

$17 Million Spent

The anual report of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis revealed that it spent 17 million dollars to fight polio during the year, and depleted its reserve funds severely.

But the report said that, despite the epidemic, the outlook for victory over the disease was "brighter at the end of 1948 than ever before," because of the advances made in research toward prevention and treatment.

Most encouraging, the foundation said, were developments in the search for a vaccine to prevent the disease. Scientists have found at least three viruses capable of producing polio in humans, it was said, and it is hoped that the exact number of such viruses will be known by 1951.

Hope Seen for Vaccine

Once that is established, the men in the laboratory will have made a tremendous step toward developing a vaccine.

It also appears "more than likely" that simple test-tube method of diagnosis will be found shortly, the report said.

States hit hard by polio in 1948 included:

California, 5856 cases; Iowa, 1260; Minnesota, 1425; Nebraska, 718; North Carolina, 2518; Texas, 1765, and Delaware, 128.

DPs Leave Louisiana Farms Seeking Missing U. S. 'Glamor'

New Orleans, La., June 12 (U.P.)—Almost half the 300 European displaced persons who took jobs on Louisiana sugar farms are believed to be heading north for better opportunities and more "glamour," authorities said today.

The DPs, they explained, have decided that life in the Deep South doesn't come up to what Hollywood movies led them to expect of the United States.

Authorities say as many as 40 per cent of those "settled" on farms in the Sugar Belt have disappeared.

The Right Rev. Msgr. William Castel, head of a Catholic organization which sponsored most of the estimated 300 arrivals, said many of them "were definitely not fitted for farm work or for conditions in Louisiana.

"The biggest trouble," he said, "is the Hollywood idea of America as a land of easy riches and good times. Most Europeans have this impression, and our own officers and men overseas have fostered it by the lavish way they've thrown money around."

The 40 per cent estimate, with a prediction that 20 per cent more would leave the fields, came from a Federal official who has inspected the area. He also cited the "false propaganda" idea.

A sugar plantation owner said that his DP's "got the idea that money and good times flowed in the streets."

The New Orleans Item said the apparent exodus could be blamed on the hard work and low wages of farm laborers. Castel reports DP's are paid the same as any workers, about $2.90 per day.

One Armenian woman, who kept changing jobs, was quoted as saying "I didn't come here to work. I came to get a rich husband."

votes to pass a housing bill, but it may involve another compromise.

Other Truman bills having House committee trouble:

1. Taft-Hartley repeal. A Labor subcommittee is still looking for a compromise, hasn't yet come up with anything. The original bill was recommitted May 4. The committee is prayerfully hoping the Senate will find the answer.

2. Minimum wage. Coverage provisions are being rewritten. The bill may wind up with just a simple 75-cent ceiling provision and even this may be compromised on the floor.

3. Federal aid to education. The Barden subcommittee report has reopened the old religious controversy over the bill. The Senate-passed bill needs top House leadership support it isn't getting.

4. Civil Rights. A House subcommittee of the Administration committee has indefinitely postponed action on the antipoll tax bill, usually sped to the Senate at the start of each session. Anti-lynching bill, though reported in the Senate, faces coalition trouble in the House Judiciary Committee. House Labor Subcommittee has reported an FEPC bill but it's far from in the clear.

5. Social Security. House Ways and Means Committee has been working on the President's social security program for weeks and is expected to produce a compromise. Chances nil that it will pass the House in time for Senate action.

6. New Taxes. Out the window.

Juvenile Court Bill

When the Juvenile Court judgeship bill comes before the House today, we hope that body will realize the importance of the issue to the local community. Passage of this bill is absolutely necessary to get the Juvenile Court into full operation again as a court especially equipped to deal with the problems of children. Since Judge Bentley was incapacitated, the children's court has been hobbling along with the aid of judges borrowed from the Municipal Court. The result has been to cripple the Municipal Court while leaving the Juvenile Court without that continuity of expert supervision which is essential to effective work in this field.

Important as it is to get the bill through, we hope the House will amend the version passed by the Senate in two respects. The Senate included a provision intended to require that the Juvenile Court judge be chosen from the District. That is an unwise modification of the present law, which allows the President to select the ablest lawyer-social worker he can find for the position. We cannot help thinking that this is a step backward, especially because it might prevent the appointment of a highly experienced former juvenile judge living in Arlington whose name is said to be under consideration. The other change that ought to be made is to increase the salary of the new judge from $10,000 to $13,000 to keep it in line with the salary boost which would be given to Municipal Court judges in another bill scheduled to come up in the House today. The increase is long overdue, but surely it should not be denied to the juvenile judge who must combine a wide background in social work and child psychology with learning in the law.

Sigrid Undset

Fru Sigrid Undset, who died the other day at Oslo, is one of those novelists whose reputations rest largely upon a single work. In her case, of course, the work is the magnificent and monumental trilogy, Kristin Lavransdatter, the first volume of which was published in 1920, after more than 18 years of research and preparation. Within a few years it had been translated into virtually every European language, and in the first flush of admiration critics were comparing it on the score of quality with War and Peace, The Brothers Karamazov and I Promessi Sposi. She was proposed almost immediately for the Nobel Prize, but it was not until 1928 that it was actually awarded to her.

Time and perspective have somewhat abated the enthusiasm aroused by Kristin Lavransdatter, but even now few would deny that it is among the finest works of imaginative fiction produced in the present century, and perhaps the greatest achievement in modern Norwegian literature, surpassing in emotional depth any single work by Bjorson, Bojer or Hamsun. It is a reconstruction of Viking life in the Fourteenth Century, to provide a setting for a story of heroic love and devotion. Fru Undset's interest in the Middle Ages began as a child, through the influence of her father, an archeologist, and she exploited her knowledge again in the ambitious tetraology, Olaf Audunsson I Hestviken, known here by its English title, The Master of Hestviken.

Before the publication of Kristin Lavransdatter, Fru Undset had been recognized as a writer of exceptional promise; after Olaf Audunsson most of her novels were received as disappointments. In nearly all her books she was preoccupied with the moral and psychological problems of domestic life, but she was far less successful when she endeavored to deal with them in modern terms.

It appears to have been Fru Undset's interest in the nature of the medieval faith that led to her own conversion to the Catholic Church, which was followed by the annulment of her marriage. She went to live with her children in an Eleventh Century house at Lillehammer, adopted medieval dress, began a systematic study of scholastic philosophy, and aided in the reconstruction of the ruined cathedral at Hammer.

Here, no doubt, despite the diminution of her creative powers, she hoped to die happily; but the latter years of her life were to be embittered by tragedy and exile. In 1940 the Nazis entered Norway and were welcomed by the famous Hamsun. Fru Undset called for resistance. Her sons joined the colors and the elder was killed a few weeks later resisting the invaders. As the Nazis moved northward, Fru Undset, then nearing 60, was obliged to join the refugees. She fled with her younger son and a party of neighbors along Arctic roads by motor and sled through burning villages, frequently harassed by the machine guns of pursuing planes. After many hardships they managed to cross the Swedish border. Ultimately, by way of Russia, Siberia and Japan, Fru Undset reached the United States, where she remained until the end of the war.

Bases For World Peace

In his Little Rock address President Truman declared that if we are to build a lasting peace in the world, the United States must be strong and prosperous, other nations devoted to the cause of peace and freedom must also be strong and prosperous, and there must be an international structure capable of adjusting international differences and maintaining peace. This succinct, but comprehensive summary not only defines the ultimate objectives of our foreign policy, but emphasizes the fact that its attainment necessitates sustained effort on our part to maintain a high level of production and purchasing power.

The Communist press seizes avidly on every bit of unfavorable business news, and plays it up with a view to persuading the countries dependent on American aid that our capitalistic system is a broken reed on which it would be folly to rely. While The Post shares the President's view that the Communists are dead wrong in predicting a collapse of American prosperity, they are undeniably right in assuming that such a collapse would be a shattering blow to the rest of the free world depending on this country for temporary aid and investment capital to develop the natural resources of backward areas. Obviously this kind of external aid presupposes the existence of surpluses of goods and capital that will not be forthcoming unless our own economy functions at sustained high levels.

While we think a good many of the President's specific recommendations for insuring sustained prosperity are misdirected, we agree wholeheartedly with his generalized outline of the steps that must be taken to maintain our strong economic position. For example, it is essential to develop our natural resources, improve social conditions and protect the purchasing power of the American people. That is a large order and to state the objectives does not guarantee their realization. But it does emphasize the need for purposive action. As the President said: "It is not sufficient to drift with the tide."

What the President said about the folly of cutting down recovery aid just as the program is gaining momentum is especially opportune. Such false economy here, Mr. Truman points out, would be "a great gain for communism" and would "cancel the hopes and the plans of the western European nations."

The President stressed the paramount importance of the United Nations, the Atlantic Pact and military aid for pact signatories as an insurance against unprovoked attack and a means of allaying the fears that have retarded European economic recovery. There must be some assurance against the outbreak of aggression. Otherwise no economic program, however well conceived, can succeed. The cost of such insurance is slight compared with the amounts expended for economic recovery; and it is an outlay that is essential for our own protection as well as that of the aided nations of Europe.

Senatorial Bullies

Administrator Hoffman's announcement that he will resign unless given sufficient money to do a good job shows the sincerity of his conviction that the recovery program would be wrecked by further cuts in ECA appropriations. Yet Chairman McKellar accuses Mr. Hoffman of trying to bully the economy-minded Senate Appropriations Committee. If anyone is guilty of bullying, it is Mr. McKellar himself. For he has not only accused Mr. Hoffman of putting pressure on the committee, without a shadow of proof to support the charge, but has also shown contempt for the witness and all his works by asking what he is doing in Europe "other than giving away other people's money." Mr. McKellar is entitled to his own opinion as to the restorative power of the ECA program, but he abuses the privileges of his important position as head of the Appropriations Committee by his verbal lashing of a witness who presumes to differ with him.

This kind of bullying by committee members is all too common, as shown by the action of Senator Eastland in cursing a witness before a Judiciary Subcommittee because he refused to take a non-Communist oath before testifying. There is some satisfaction in knowing that the Senator came out second-best in the exchange of insults that preceded the witness' abrupt departure. But these encounters gravely impair the prestige of Congress in the eyes of the public and disrupt the orderly processes of law-making which are dependent on conscientious, objective inquiries by its committees.

Fortunately, Mr. Hoffman is one of those Government officials who is not dependent on his job. On the contrary, he made heavy financial sacrifices when he entered Government employment. His reward lies in the consciousness that, as head of ECA, he is serving his country and the world by his efforts to hasten European recovery. If Congress denies him the funds required to do his work efficiently, resignation is his only defense against charges of incompetency. Senator McKellar's outburst has at least forced members of his committee to consider the consequences of arbitrarily cutting ECA appropriations below the bedrock figure approved by the House. It is a hopeful augury that Senator Ferguson, one of the leaders in the Senate economy drive, declares that Mr. Hoffman's resignation would be a calamity, although he applauds the administrator's intention to withdraw if convinced that he cannot do a good job with the funds granted him. Many of the other members of the committee also expressed confidence in Mr. Hoffman's ability and disavowed any intention of impairing the effectiveness of the ECA program. If these Senators mean what they say, they will not risk losing the services of an experienced and competent official by pressing for greater reductions in ECA appropriations than Mr. Hoffman is willing to accept.

Vishinsky's Move

After three weeks of keeping the West guessing, Mr. Vishinsky came forward last week with the propaganda play which everyone expected at the start of the Paris meeting. He suggested, first, that the Foreign Ministers' deputies be assigned to draft a peace treaty with Germany within three months, and, second, that occupation troops be withdrawn a year after the treaty is signed.

We call this a "propaganda play" because of the circumstances in which it was made. If Mr. Vishinsky had shown even the slightest willingness to release the Soviet-owned properties and otherwise to relax the police-state system in the eastern zone; if he had shown the slightest desire to replace the old veto-ridden four-power rule in Berlin with something that could work; if he had shown any spirit of accommodation on anything at all, he could rightly have asked for serious consideration of his present proposal. Certainly the occupying armies will have to be withdrawn some day. But for the Russians to come forward airily, after so much stonewalling at the conference table, suggests that they are not really interested in anything but belatedly winning the applause of the German people. We do not blame Mr. Acheson for his tart remark that he did not come to Paris to engage in a "diplomatic minuet," or for his asking what kind of Germany Mr. Vishinsky would make a treaty with. Would it be the Sovietized Germany of the eastern zone? What would its frontiers be? Would it be one Germany or two?

The idea of putting the deputies to work for the next few months is not a bad one. The Foreign Ministers themselves will have to adjourn before long, and it would be infinitely better to adjourn subject to a later resumption than to break up in complete frustration, as the Foreign Ministers did in London 18 months ago. But since the Foreign Ministers have not been able to reach any major agreements on principle, and do not seem likely to agree, the deputies' assignments will have to be more limited than Mr. Vishinsky proposes. One project they might usefully discuss, for later submission to the Foreign Ministers, is a step-by-step reduction in the number of the occupying forces, of the kind Mr. Byrnes proposed without success more than two years ago. Another, which might have the double value of cutting Allied costs and reducing friction with the Germans, would be concentration of the occupying troops into a few stated areas. But to ask the deputies to write a treaty, when their principals are so far from agreement, would be an utter waste of time.

So far, Mr. Acheson and his Western colleagues have failed to get German unity on tolerable terms, and have failed to work out a manageable scheme of municipal government in Berlin. This newspaper will not shed tears over either failure. "A world united is better than a world divided," said Mr. Churchill three years ago, "but a world divided is better than a world destroyed." Certainly a Germany divided, for a temporary period, is better than a Germany ostensibly united under the kind of four-power wrangling that paralyzed recovery in the first two postwar years. The Western ministers are justified in persisting a while longer in an attempt to get a limited agreement which would free the channels of East-West trade and relax the present tension in Europe. If this is what Mr. Vishinsky wants, he has chosen a strange way to get it. His present proposals are an invitation to a wild goose chase, and the Western ministers are perfectly right to decline.

THE RAVEN AND THE DOVE

They sent the raven, according to the word given.
But the raven came not, though they followed
The course of its flight, and waited into the night.
They sent the dove, and the dove returned,
With no promise, no green leaf
To bring hope out of grief.
They sent the dove again into the world,
Where night had been and rain . . .
And the dove returned, bearing the olive leaf.

The raven found a tree rising from the flood,
And there he stayed, filling the morning air
With the harsh triumph of his cry . . .
But the dove returned, following the sure compass
Moving in the blood . . .
Following the call of hope along the sky.
So the tender bird and the dark bird
Fulfilled the word.

Letters To The Editor

Communications must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

Requests From Congress

When inconsequential correspondence is directed by a member of Congress to the head of an administrative agency with request for "consideration and a report," a chain reaction is set off which involves a lot of unnecessary and time-consuming effort. Under such circumstances, protocol dictates that the response be prepared for the signature of the head of the agency or his next in command.

The incoming communication is given a control number in the top office, referred to the primary organization unit with jurisdiction where it is given another control number and then passed on to the "shirt-sleeves" level where the requisite information or material is assembled and an answer prepared. The reply for top signature is then returned through the same channels where it is reviewed and initialed at each level.

Common courtesy demands that congressional mail be handled with dispatch but members of Congress are likewise obligated to conserve the time of important officials for the serious work at hand, unburdened by the necessity of reviewing and signing routine constituent correspondence.

The following suggestions are offered:

1. Address the head of an agency, ONLY in connection with important letters where substantive action, policy interpretation or the expression of his personal opinion is required.
2. Refer routine correspondence requesting information or published material to the appropriate agency by its official designation only.
3. Request the agency to handle the matter as best it can with reply direct to constituent, and to return the original communication, together with copy of agency reply.
4. DON'T use a printed transmittal slip calling for "consideration and a report" in connection with trivial matters.

"Pay Compromise"

Because you published my strong exceptions to your May 27 editorial on service pay it is only proper that I write again to commend what Mr. Dewey Short would call the "sweet reasonableness" of your June 3 editorial on the same topic.

Your latter editorial is so generally sound that it would be picayunish to carp at any of its details. After all, we are agreed that an increase in service pay is necessary. My objection to your first editorial was that the chances of a pay increase were not advanced by accusing those who voted to recommit of demagogic motivations.

You mention with apparent approval the appearance of service wives at the Capitol. Here again I am in agreement with you because the wives, I understand, did not argue the technicalities of the recommitted bill but properly rested their case on the need of a pay increase, leaving its form up to the Congress.

Although there has not been opportunity to give the revised bill a careful study, from hasty examination it appears to correct the defects of the first bill and to return, generally, to Hook Commission principles.

Use Of "Negro"

The writer of the May 31 letter on the use of the word "Negro" seems to be as confused about the matter of race as are many others of us. He asked if Negroes born in America are not Negroes racially. If we must speak of race, let us do so accurately.

Persons of the Negroid race are usually designated as Negroes whether they are Americans or not. Then the writer goes on to ask if Chinese, Japanese, Indians, Koreans and Hawaiians lose their racial identities through American citizenship, thus, giving the impression that these nationalities are races.

No, unfortunately, they do not lose their nationalities, nor, unfortunately, do some of them lose their racial identities entirely. However, do we speak of the Americans who are not "Negroes" as Mongoloids and Caucasians? Do we say "John Doe, a Caucasian, or John Doe, a Mongoloid, when we describe the persons of these races.

There are only three races: the Caucasian race, the Mongoloid race, and the Negroid race. Thus, Mexican, Canadian, and Irish are nationalities, while Asiatic, European and African denote the continents from which the people came.

The comparisons he used have no bearing on the continuance or discontinuance of the use of the word "Negro."

Goldenrod's Magic

Reporter Edward F. Ryan's interesting June account of the congressional committee's discussion of goldenrod vs. weeds is of particular interest inasmuch as the "rod of gold" was the first national flower of this land.

Anciently the goldenrod was a hallowed symbol of the legendary "rod of gold" reputed to have been used by the Great Spirit Manitou in rending a great rock on a mountain peak to obtain "healing waters" (imbued with "good magic"), for the specific healing of stricken tribesmen.

As vapors from the hissing waters rose to the sky Manitou was carried back into the great beyond. From the distance, however, the revived multitude "heard a faint voice" telling of the symbolic "rod of gold," which could not be seen until the mists had cleared away. Then, before them, along the hillsides, gleamed the dew-pearled symbols waving in the sun like delicate fans of spun-gold.

Then came the winds and blew the seeds of the goldenrod to the four corners of this great land. Today, this national symbol of peace, security and freedom blooms in every state of the U. S. A. and still is our true national flower.

American Near East Propaganda

Since I arrived in Damascus and Beirut, I have been surprised at the uniformity of the questions asked about the U. S. Many of the questioners wanted to know about the causes of the recent drop in employment, and whether this drop was symptomatic of a coming depression. Others were interested in the treatment which we accord our Negro and minority population.

The tendency is immediately to make a comparison between the United States and the Soviet Union in the field of labor relations and to point to the progress which the Negroes have made in recent decades. This is the essence of the crisis. The problem of unemployment — though exaggerated—makes the Arabs disbelieve in the complete perfection of a free enterprise system. This latter suspicion becomes more acute in regard to certain practices of the American firms in dealing with native labor.

The more the U. S. is exposed, the more it is subject for examination. The examination is increased by the impact of the Soviet propaganda on the Arab mind. This seems to be dismissed by the American propagandists in the Near East, because the hypothesis upon which they function is false. They assume that the indictment against us coming from the Soviet Union could be rebuffed as easily as it is in the U. S. In this belief they are helped by the attitudes of certain strata of population whose very existence depend upon the financial and moral backing of the Western powers.

The American propagandists in the Near East do not understand the mind to which their propaganda is addressed. They depend on certain native officers who are well known to be agents for this or that of the powers. They belong usually to the very few Protestant converts who are native instructors in the American colleges.

Then our literature is very dry. It is always an attempt to color artificially our accomplishments. They say that we are extroverts and behave like nouveaux riches and that we are "good hearted." Our dollar is the power, they say, but we do not command respect.

People who are pro-American, are so, as long as their economic returns remain American. We are considered the underwriters of British imperialism and our relations with Greece and Turkey, our stand in Asiatic countries make it easy for Soviet propaganda to be accepted as the true informative source.

Soviet propaganda is unpretentious. The offensive nature makes it strong and seemingly sincere. The Soviet system seems to provide a continuity into a known direction. The doctrine they advocate is presented as inevitable. In facing this well-presented propaganda coupled with a clear background in Soviet-Arab relations, the American underrating the Arab mentality is making the crisis more acute.

To enable the rehabilitation of this deteriorating and outmoded American propaganda in the Near East it is imperative that certain general and particular factors be kept in mind.

(a) The abandonment of presenting two alternatives, the status quo or Communism; (b) The application of a positive presentation of the genuine truth about the U. S. (c) The bringing to a debate of many who are antagonistic to the American system, in order to neutralize their opposition. (d) The creation of a better machinery and more experienced personnel to represent the American life. (e) Abandonment of certain stereotyped beliefs in our superiority which we think is an asset in itself. We exaggerate, and the difference between the exaggeration and truth exposed so bluntly by the Soviet makes even the truth about us unbelievable.

Matter of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

This Secrecy Nonsense

THE ATOMIC ENERGY investigation is at last beginning to reveal what all the shouting is about. It turns out that David E. Lilienthal is entangled in a difficult personal equation. He has made some borderline judgments. And he has not made sufficient concessions to the ostrich-minded national secrecy obsession that is now approaching the proportions of the famous panic after Orson Welles' Martian broadcast.

These may seem inadequate reasons for charging a great public servant with incredible mismanagement, as Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper has charged Lilienthal. But since these are the causes for several weeks' suspension of all regular work by the entire higher staff of the most important industrial enterprise in the world, they deserve to be examined with some care.

In brief, the personal equation behind the present investigation begins with a relatively minor split between Atomic Energy Commissioner Lewis Strauss and his four colleagues, headed by Lilienthal. On almost all the issues now causing so much turmoil, Strauss has regularly voted with the rest of the commission. There has never been a divided vote on any matter of operations, management or program, including the controversial gas-pipeline to the Oak Ridge plant.

EQUALLY, Commissioner Strauss has voted with his colleagues on major security issues, like the clearances of Drs. Condon and Graham, and the procedure for granting the commission's research fellowships. (These research fellows, by the way, are simply hired to produce useful ideas, as hens are fed for the eggs they lay. Worrying about their political affiliations is precisely like not feeding good egg-layers because they have radical views on the henhouse pecking order. But that is beside the point.)

Commissioner Strauss has often disagreed with his colleagues, however, about what may be called foreign relations. The commission is constantly having to decide which radio-isotopes may be sent abroad, where they may be sent, how far the war-born Anglo-Canadian-American atomic energy partnership is to go, and so forth. All these decisions have been controversial. The most controversial are actually those which have not yet been discussed, such as the decision whether atomic weapons ought to be made in Britain, only a Channel's breadth from Europe.

An all these issues, the other commissioners have tended toward a broad interpretation of the statute, while Commissioner Strauss has insisted on a strict interpretation. Possibly Lilienthal and his colleagues have made borderline judgments in this area. At any rate, through the commission's link with the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee, these dissents of Strauss were bruited about.

IN THE POISONOUS little world of Washington, the Strauss dissents were then exaggerated into a full-scale war within the commission. Gossip began to give Strauss the role of the Atomic Energy Commission's only defender of "the American way," that Lilienthal's power-lobby enemies talk so much about.

Meanwhile, on the Joint Congressional Committee, Senator Hickenlooper had invested more time learning about atomic energy than anyone else. He became the expert. Having become the expert, he inevitably became a backseat driver. And when his advice from the back seat was not always taken, he flew into the kind of fit of indignation that all frontseat drivers know only too well. Hence the present investigation.

This is all trivial enough. But what really makes the proceedings in the Senate caucus chamber look foolish, is one simple fact. In preparing the American rearmament program, the Joint Chiefs of Staff formally adopted 1952 as their planning date, by which this country would have to be prepared for the Soviet Union's building an atomic bomb. And this was done by the Joint Chiefs on the further assumption that atomic security would be maintained in America.

There are many experts who regard the Joint Chiefs' planning date as far too pessimistic. But even if the year to worry about is 1957, as the British authorities think, there is plainly no safety whatever in mere secrecy, however hysterically enforced. Plainly, the only safety now lies in national strength and wise national policy.

THAT BLEAK TRUTH puts those who yell loudest about "secrecy" and the danger from "subversives" in a pretty false position. For these same men are generally the advocates of feeble and foolish foreign and defense policies. And in exchange for a binding assurance of American feebleness and folly, the Politburo would undoubtedly give every secret in all the Atomic Energy Commission's triple-locked and guarded files.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Time Running Out

MR. HOFFMAN, arguing with the Senate Appropriations Committee, has certainly not exaggerated and has almost surely understated the consequences of a still greater cut in ERP funds. For the truth is that the amount of money he is asking for now is considerably less than what was regarded as a necessary minimum at the beginning of last winter. Yet when the original calculations were made, it was still believed by almost everyone that the American recession would be checked by a seasonal improvement in the spring.

LIPPMANN

In fact the recession has not been checked but is developing. Moreover, abroad there are now unmistakable signs, most clearly visible in Great Britain but by no means confined to Great Britain, that a depression of serious proportions is in the making. Therefore, the amount Mr. Hoffman is willing to accept now, and is fighting to keep Congress from cutting further, is almost certainly too little to sustain the recovery already achieved. For what might have been just enough to keep things going slowly forward—with no recession in America and no depression abroad—cannot be nearly enough now to keep things from going rapidly and dangerously backward.

THE TRUE situation, which has been very much obscured over here, is most clearly recognized, and despite the impending election is being more honestly discussed, in the United Kingdom. Last week the Economist said in language which is all the more impressive because of its restraint that "the circumstances by which Britain may soon be threatened are of an unprecedented kind" . . . and the Times (London) said that "with the easy sellers' market ended and competition rising, the stake is no less than the national standard of life."

That is a very high stake indeed. For the British standard of life is not luxurious, not even comfortable. If it cannot withstand the world-wide depression and deflation, the political and social consequences even among so steadfast and mature a people as the British will not be agreeable to contemplate. The consequences elsewhere, for example in Germany, will be even less agreeable.

THE AMERICAN recession has not created the British and the European problem of how to maintain the relatively low standard of life which has been achieved since the end of the war. But the American recession is disclosing how deep, how difficult, how insoluble by our present policies and devices, is the problem of European recovery. The change in the economic climate will compel us to face the problems we have never as yet been willing to face much sooner than even the experts anticipated, and long before the governments and the people are prepared to face them.

There is current a good deal of pretense and propaganda about how well in hand everything is. Yet ever since the report of the Marshall Plan countries which was made available at the end of 1948 it has been known to the relatively few who studied it that the goal of European recovery, in the official and popular sense of the words, was unattainable by 1952—during the period set by Congress and agreed to by the Marshall Plan countries. It was certain that even with almost unlimited wishful thinking the leading industrial countries of Europe could not become self-supporting and still achieve and maintain a tolerable standard of life by 1952, or in fact at any foreseeable date.

BUT EVEN those who knew the hard facts of life hoped and believed that with Marshall aid we would be able to buy enough time before the Western world had to face the deeper and more dangerous issues of recovery and reconstruction. They hoped and believed that though the Marshall Plan could not make Europe prosperous and solvent, it would buy the time to repair the physical damage of the war, to stabilize the political, the financial and the administrative machinery, to recuperate from the emotional shock of the war, to reduce the tensions and to find at least an accommodation with the Soviet Union, and to make peace with Germany and Japan.

The Marshall Plan has, of course, been buying time in this sense. But it now seems probable that with the American recession, the tapering off of American aid, the exhaustion of European reserves, the time which we are able to buy is very much shortened. Problems that could be postponed, or played with, during the inflationary boom, will come crowding upon us the more rapidly and acutely the international deflation develops. And the more Congress cuts Mr. Hoffman's appropriation, the sooner the Congress will be faced with these problems, which it has not even begun to think about.

THEY WILL be problems that cannot be solved by a rip-snorting statement from a Hickenlooper or a McCarran, which is then "investigated" amidst the klieg lights, the television cameras, and the microphones. They will be the problems posed by the relation, unprecedented in all history, between the North American continent and all the other continents — and of how a decent world society can exist where the disparity in power and in wealth as between nations of the same culture and ideals is so dangerously wide.

Truman's Advisers Challenge Census Data on Joblessness

after the first quarter, when the signs of business deterioration first became marked. Congressional leaders who discussed the matter with him at that time were told he had set 5 million jobless as the danger mark. If unemployment reached that total, he would consider the national economy in peril and would propose drastic corrective measures.

"Hidden Unemployment"

The analysis of the CEA experts indicates the situation is nearing the crisis point fixed by the President.

The economists base their challenge of the census figures on what they call "hidden unemployment." Census reported 1,989,000 employed one to 14 hours a week. The CEA experts are attacking these figures on two grounds; they are too low and the income these part-time workers are receiving is less than they would get from unemployment compensation.

This position is vigorously supported by three widely diverse members of Congress.

Senator Maybank (D., S. C.), chairman of the Banking Committee, says large-scale part-time employment is general throughout the textile mills in his section Representative Woodhouse, liberal Connecticut Democrat and former economist, declares "hidden unemployment" is greater in New England than in any other part of the country. Representative Michener (R., Mich.) reports a large percentage of the plants in his area are now operating only two days a week.

Nourse Opposes Bearish Attitude

Among the three CEA members there is an increasingly sharp division over how "tough" their next report to the President should be.

Dr. Edwin Nourse, conservative chairman, is opposed to a bearish report. Leon Keyserling, New Dealer, sees things through dark glasses. John Clark, a self-admitted economic "agnostic," favors a keep-cool middle course.

The three are generally agreed on two points. That the underlying trend is in the direction of deterioration, but the decline will be gradual and not precipitous. Also, that the real test on employment will come in the fall and not this summer.

The major issue of disagreement the three presidential advisers is the economic level at which the Government should take stabilization measures.

This level could be high or low. In 1939, there were eight million unemployed, and the Roosevelt Administration stabilized the economy at that level. The President's economic advisers are in dispute over the level his Administration should go into stabilizing action.

Business Decline Noted

The ominous view of the CEA economists is echoed by the "Economic Indicator," being released by the Joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report this week. This publication was initiated this year by Chairman O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.).

Highlights of this report are as follows:

All major components of business declined significantly in the first quarter of this year. In the second quarter, rents continued to advance, food prices rose seasonally, prices of apparel and house furnishings declined.

Farmers received 1½ per cent less during April 15-May 15 than previous.

Construction Shows Gain

However, there was one striking cheering item in this report. It recorded that new construction in May increased for the third successive month, to a total of $1,600,000,000. Public contruction is credited as responsible for this rise.

Despite the gloomy nature of his committee's report, Senator O'Mahoney insists the economic situation is not critical. He says:

"Figures are subject to tremendous misinterpretation. While there is considerable unemployment, it is not of the magnitude nor significance attributed to it. More people are working this month than last month. Thus we have a paradox. Employment increased, and so did unemployment.

"We are simply having a struggle between buyers and sellers. The buyers are holding off. There is no remote possibility of the situation getting out of hand."

Army Security Traded for Pay

perts of the House Armed Services Committee estimate that the new physical retirement system proposed in Title IV of the pay bill eventually will cut physical retirement costs in half.

They say that by 1975, when the present disability list has been replaced by those retired under the new system—if it is approved—that about 75 million of the present 150 million dollars paid out in such pension checks can be saved. This is based on a retirement roll of about the present size. Actually, with the Armed Forces at much greater strength than they ever have been, the roll can be expected to grow tremendously.

That is a principal reason for curtailing such retirement benefits. The cost could get way out of sight under present law. Another reason is the desire to grant more favorable disability benefits to career enlisted men—who for the first time will be put on the same basis as officers.

This swapping of security for higher immediate and prospective pay is evident in other features of the legislation. Present pay scales are based more on need than on responsibility. Length of service and the size of a man's family sometimes count more than his rank.

The bill would end family allowances when present enlistments expire. It would also make length of service and dependency count far less than at present in determining monthly pay checks.

A Communication

Mr. Pearson And The Lilypons Postoffice

UNDER date of May 27, there appeared in your paper under the Washington Merry-Go-Round an article by Drew Pearson, grossly inaccurate. The article sets forth among other things "No private individual person gets his mail at Lilypons. It serves one goldfish company—no one else."

Private individuals do get mail at Lilypons. Later, in the same article, Mr. Pearson, quoting from postoffice inspector reports, says "no patrons except the Three Springs Fisheries and the Thomas Supply Co."

The article says "Local citizens have petitioned the Government to have the postoffice closed." Either of the Maryland Senators could have told you that they received about 200 letters from leading citizens requesting its retention.

"The employes of the companies number only 10, and the employes do not live at Lilypons." Actual employes of the Three Springs Fisheries alone number 26. This is from the payroll. The true facts could have been obtained by you or Mr. Pearson by a phone call.

Your correspondent states the office is in a cow pasture. The office is located on the property owned by the Thomas Fisheries, containing over 200 acres actually under water.

YOUR correspondent, quoting from the inspector's report, says "At this season of the year incoming mail to the firms at Lilypons is small in amount; sometimes only five pieces are received. During the peak season about 100 pieces are received daily."

The Three Springs Fisheries, alone, has so far this year—January 1, 1949, to May 31, 1949—dispatched 38,247 catalogues. This alone would average over 200 pieces daily. The Thomas Supply Co. has a mailing list of over 1000 names, circulated on an average of every other week.

The Three Springs Fisheries receive more than 10,000 orders per year. Each of these is acknowledged. These would average over 50 letters daily. There has been received an average of over 500 letters, first class, for the past few months. "At this season" when the inspector says the incoming mail "is small in amount, sometimes only five pieces are received."

In reference to the expenses of this office, postage paid by Three Springs Fisheries from January 1, 1948, to December 31, 1948, was $3437.06. Catalog postage, $406.17; postage, Thomas Supply Co., $281.18, or a total of $4124.41. This does not include sums received by the postmaster for cashing money orders, insured items, and things of this kind that always bring in miscellaneous income. We know that many stamps are sold to other patrons of the Lilypons (Md.) postoffice. Signed receipts are held by the Thomas Supply Co. and Three Springs Fisheries for money paid to the Lilypons postoffice for the year January 1, 1948, to December 31, 1948.

Postage—Three Springs Fisheries		$3437.06
Catalog Postage		406.17
Postage—Thomas Supply Co.		281.18
Total		$4124.41
Expenses: Acting Postmaster	$2250.00
Rent	300.00
Mail Transfer	960.00	3510.00
Profit		$614.41

RECEIPTS over expenses $614.41 for just the two patrons alone. Other receipts would increase. Thus, instead of a cost of $5000, the receipts are more than $600 over disbursements.

Third and fourth class postmaster are, we believe, required to submit annual reports showing the number of patrons at their office. These reports will show that there is more than one patron at Lilypons, Md.

A catalog and an airplane view of the property is sent under separate cover to show the "cow pasture." Three farms (with ponds) are owned by us. Six residences, occupied, are located thereon.

The Lilypons, Md., postoffice was established at the suggestion of the Postoffice Department about 17 years ago. No other postoffice in southern Fredrick County, other than the Fredrick office, 15 miles from Lilypons, has facilities to handle this volume of mail. The fourth class mail originating at Lilypons does not now, nor has it ever, gone through the Adamstown postoffice. It goes directly to the train and not through the Adamstown office for the reason that this postoffice is not large enough to handle it.

We feel that you and your correspondent have done a great injustice to our Senators. We feel that the same was not intentional. If you cannot substantiate the statements you have made or the postoffice inspectors which you have quoted and used as your own, then I am sure you will readily admit to the great injustice that has been done.

G. L. THOMAS, JR.,
Three Springs Fisheries.
Lilypons, Md.

The Editor of The Post:

Mr. G. L. Thomas, jr., happens to be a co-owner of the gold fish company which chiefly profits from this postoffice. His company was paid $300 a year rent by Uncle Sam, plus $960 a year for truck hire, on top of which Mr. Thomas himself for a time drew a salary as postmaster.

The recommendation to close the postoffice was that of the Postoffice Department, not mine. The Postoffice Department stated:

"The Lilypons Postoffice serves no patrons except the Three Springs Fisheries and the Thomas Supply Co. Mail is not received for other firms or persons. . . . Discontinuance of the postoffice will not work any hardship on the Three Springs Fisheries or the Thomas Supply Co. . . . . The department is of the opinion that the postoffice should be discontinued, inasmuch as it would not work a hardship and it would save the department money."

Senator Tydings was chiefly responsible for reversing the department's original decision to close.

ADA Warns of Depression, Demands Action to Avert It

By the United Press

Asserting steps must be taken quickly to avert a depression, Americans for Democratic Action yesterday called on President Truman to give the public the "unvarnished" facts on the economic picture and to report on present plans to meet the situation.

Chairman O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) of the Joint Senate-House Economic Committee, said meantime that reports of mounting unemployment could be "easily subject to misinterpretation" because the number of jobholders also is up.

O'Mahoney said his committee will begin work this week in an effort to find out what can be done to halt unemployment trends and to promote business investments.

ADA, a liberal "New Deal" group numbering several former Roosevelt regime officials among its leaders, voiced alarm at current employment and production figures, and said "real economic danger may lie ahead."

In a statement prepared by its 60-member national council following a quarterly meeting here, ADA stated:

"In our judgment we are on the thin ice of a recession, and unless we act quickly and effectively, we may plunge through into disaster. A major depression in America would be a stunning setback to the free world."

Opinion on Polish Film Ban Due Today

Baltimore, June 12 (AP).—Attorney General Hall Hammond is expected to issue an opinion Monday on whether or not the State board of motion picture censors acted within its authority in banning the documentary film, "On Polish Land."

In barring the film, the board contended that it falsely portrayed "present-day conditions in Poland" and characterized it as "Communist propaganda."

Democrats Aim Iowa Parley At Hickenlooper and Taft

popular. He upset Republican traditions in the primaries two years ago, when he defeated the sitting Governor, Robert Blue.

In spite of the fact that Truman carried the State by almost 50,000 over Dewey—an unprecedented victory in Iowa—and Gillette defeated Wilson by almost 200,000, Beardsley was elected by more than 100,000. In other words, he ran upwards of a quarter of a million ahead of his ticket.

"But if Beardsley doesn't beat Hickenlooper, Loveland will," a prominent Republican, former office holder and party leader, told me last night.

Loveland is Albert Loveland, the present Undersecretary of Agriculture. Loveland is here taking part in the present farm pow-wow. There is no secret that he is being groomed for next year.

The decision to hold this meeting in Des Moines came after Loveland showed interest and after the Midwest Republican conference was slated for Davenport, Iowa, next month.

The Republican conference, like this one, is composed of leaders from the 16 Midwest farm States.

The Democrats jumped in ahead, they'll toss the benefits of the Brannan plan to the voters here tomorrow, and then let the Republicans come in and defend themselves. A defensive fight is a hard one to win.

For the first time in 10 years Ohio Democrats are taking part in this conference. Leaders admit that they are here to be fully briefed on the Brannan plan.

They will thus be ready to begin the campaign for 1950 against Taft good and early.

Price Supports to Go, Brannan Says in Iowa

Des Moines, June 12.—Charles F. Brannan forecast today that the present price support program will be got rid of in the next few years, regardless of what happens to his plan.

Brannan met in a strictly hush-hush meeting with about 100 production and marketing county chairmen late today.

After outlining his farm program Brannan said that drastic action must be taken by his office to halt losses under the present price support system. He declared that next year he plans a tremendous cut in acreage planted in potatoes.

Brannan declared that his farm program is better than anything the price supporters have offered. "If they can't come up with something better than making alcohol out of our farm products to use as automobile fuel, while people are hungry, then it's time for a change."

CARY MIDDLECOFF'S victory in the National Open fulfilled the long-range prediction of Bobby Locke, who, when in Washington last Summer, opined, "That lad ought to win the Open in 1949." . . . When Sammy Snead three-putted the next-to-last green and lost his chance to tie for the title, it recalled Bob Hope's crack in the National Celebrities tournament. Speaking of Snead' putting stroubles, Hope pointed out that Sammy lacked the authority of Middlecoff, the golfing dentist, who putts for the hole and commands "Open wider, please." . . . Broadcaster Bill Stern fluffed his descriptive shots on the 35th green. In a dramatically low voice he followed "Snead's" drive to within 10 feet of the cup and then confessed his mistake: Snead hadn't yet teed off . . . in a sudden farm-system shift, the Nats shunted George Myatt from his managerial job at Chattanooga to the post at Orlanda, Fla., and hired Catcher Fred Walters as player-manager of the Lookouts . . . Buck Newsom pitched his last three games for Chattanooga with a broken toe on his right foot, he later learned . . . Ezzard Charles, nine days away from the chance to beat Jersey Joe Walcott for Joe Louis' vacated title, was born in the same Georgia county as Louis.

He will contribute $15 monthly toward the child's support under the Foster Parents' Plan for War Children . . . Genter Dahl, one of the 32 former caddies sent to college by the Chick Evans Scholars Foundation, this week will graduate as No. 1 in his class from the famed Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern U. . . . the Baltimore Colts again will be strong in the extra-point department. Back with the team is Rex Grossman, former Indiana star who kicked 43 points after touchdown last season in 43 attempts. He also made good on 10 of his 18 field goal tries . . . Charley Keller isn't hitting at Newark, either, and the Yankees have no thought of recalling him this season . . . correction and apology: Dale Mitchell of the Cleveland Indians was hitting .320 last week, not .270, as was reported here . . . the Nats' current leadership in home run production recalls that back around 1905, the entire season total of Washington home runs was one . . . there will be no more important trades in the major leagues after Saturday, midnight unless waivers can first be obtained on the players involved, which means important players won't be involved.

THE NEW COMBINE promoting the Walcott-Charles heavyweight fight at Chicago reports advance sales of $150,000 toward its goal of a $300,000 gate. Tickets range from $22.75 ringside, to $3.25 county side . . . The Cleveland Indians have had no luck with their first five Sunday home dates of the season. The first brought a postponement because of rain; the next saw the Indians lose a game to Detroit, and on the three succeeding Sabbaths they lost double headers to Chicago, Washington and Philadelphia . . . Del Webb, co-owner of the Yankees, took a deep interest in Joe DiMaggio's afflicted heel and personally escorted him to various doctors. "And now my own heels are beginning to hurt," complains Webb. "It must be the power of suggestion. At least, I don't think it's contagious." . . . the Yankees lost interest in one of their rookie outfielders last spring when he offered to sign at $1000 less, "if you don't play me against left-handed pitching." . . . After Monty Stratton lost his leg in a hunting accident in 1938, his uniform was handed down to their Longview, Tex., farm club by the White Sox in 1939. The first wearer, a pitcher, slipped while fielding a bunt and broke his leg, reports the Baseball Digest. The next man to risk wearing Stratton's jinx suit saw his batting average fall from .300 to .140 and discarded it. Pitcher Pat Ralsh inherited the uniform, lost five straight and wound up with a leg infection.

HOLLYWOOD WAS smitten by Hank Greenberg's easy performance in the filming of "The Cleveland Story," and is now considering Handsome Henry for roles of the Gary Cooper type . . . upcoming soon in the new and profitable cycle of sports hero movies is "The Life of Jim Thorpe," authored by Vincent X. Flaherty of the Los Angeles Times . . . the surest bets for berths on the American League All-Star team that will meet the National Leaguers in July are George Kell, Detroit third baseman, Eddie Joost, As' shortstop, and Eddie Robinson, Nats' first baseman. They are stand-outs on this season's performance. . .those six-months suspensions for trainers and owners involved in doping charge at Charles Town are absurdly light and invite new attempts. And what happened to the Bureau of Narcotics' interest in that kind of violations? . . . Eddie Joost, released six years ago by the Cincinnati Reds because he couldn't hit, now tops the American League with his .335 average . . . Roberto Ortiz, offered a contract by the Nats when the ban on Mexican jumpers was lifted by Commissioner Chandler, has told Clark Griffith it will be "impossible" for him to report. The Venezuela club he now plays for won't release him, Ortiz wrote.

Hoyas End Season By Losing, 4-3

Georgetown University's Hoyas closed out their 1949 baseball season by bowing to the Quantico Marines, 4-3, yesterday at the Hilltop. The Hoyas have a record of 20 wins and 12 defeats.

Frank Wall was the winning pitcher, avenging last Sunday's loss to the Hoyas when they stopped his six-game win streak by a 3-0 score.

Bums Wallop Reds, 20 to 7; Cox, Hodges Hit 2 Homers

Brooklyn, June 12 (AP).—Billy Cox and Gil Hodges clouted two homers apiece and drove in 14 runs between them today as the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers routed Cincinnati, 20 to 7, today. Hodges drove in eight runs and Cox six.

The Dodgers belted seven Cincinnati pitchers for 13 hits and were aided by 11 walks and one hit batsman in stretching their winning streak to seven games. They walloped five of the Red hurlers for 10 runs in the fifth inning to break a 5-5 tie.

Cox, batting eighth, hit two homer and a double—the last blow with the bases loaded—in his first three times up to drive in six of the Dodgers' first nine runs. Hodges mopped up in the later innings, following a single in the ten-run fifth with a three-run homer the same frame and a grand slam homer in the seventh.

This started out to be a romp for the Dodgers. They were ahead, 5-0, going into the fifth.

Snead's 62-63 Wins Him $500

Decatur, Ill., June 12 (AP).—Sammy Snead, who didn't have quite enough steam to win the National Open golf tournament, was certainly hot today.

Slammin' Sammy negotiated the South Side Country Club in 62, 63—125, 17 strokes under par to cop first prize and $500 in the Decatur Invitational golf meet. His 62 was a course record.

The White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., veteran, tied for second in the Open Tourney which ended yesterday. After the match, he told newsmen it was the lowest consecutive two rounds of 18 holes that he ever had shot.

Other finishers, one of whom shared in the winner-take-all prize money, were: Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, 67, 66—133; Dick Metz, Arkansas City, Ark., 65, 69—134 and Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, N. C., 66, 70—136.

Galento Picks Walcott

Momence, June 12 (AP).—Two-ton Tony Galento, who has been punched by experts, predicted today that Jersey Joe Walcott will flatten Ezzard Charles for the heavyweight title when they meet in Chicago June 22.

Tony watched both aspirants to Joe Louis' vacated title work out today and opined: "I pick Walcott to win by a knockout."

Boat's Bottom Falls Out

New York, June 12 (AP).—The bottom fell out of things today for 24-year-old J. R. Lewis.

He was nearing the finish line in his outboard motorboat in the annual 140-mile Albany-to-New York race on the Hudson River.

Off 158th st., the bottom fell out of his boat.

Minors Go Major

Butler, Pa., June 12 (AP).—The minor baseball leagues aren't taking a back seat to promotion minded major leagues—at least not in the Class C Middle Atlantic League.

General Manager David M. Thornton of the Butler Tigers said today the first 1000 women to pass through the turnstiles here June 28 will receive "genuine Princess Aloha orchids." They'll be flown by special plane from Hawaii. Indidentally, the Butler nine is in last place.

Schindler Wins; Driver Killed

Langhorne, Pa., June 12 (AP).—Bill Schindler, one-legged, veteran from Freeport, N. Y., won the 150-mile National Midget Auto Racing Championship here today in 1 hour, 52 minutes, 45.18 seconds.

In second place was Henry Renard, Baldwin, N. Y.

In a trial heat Len Koenig, 37, of Palmyra, Pa., was injured fatally when his car sideswiped another and turned over. He died en route to Mercer Hospital where doctors said he suffered a broken neck and other injuries.

DENTE WAS WAITING—First Baseman Paul Campbell of the Detroit Tigers might have been successful on this effort to steal second if the Nats' Catcher Al Evans hadn't anticipated it. Evans called for a pitch-out, then threw to Shortstop Sam Dente for an easy out. The play, however, coming in the second inning of the first game, had very little effect on a 9-0 Tiger victory

Johnny's 450-Foot Double Wins In Nightcap

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Detroit, June 12.—Johnny Groth struck a blow for the Detroit Tigers, himself, two magazines and and against the Nats today.

The rookie centerfielder, featured in two publications this week, poled out a ninth-inning, bases-loaded double to drive in two runs and bring the Tigers a thrilling 6-5 victory in the second game of a doubleheader after Hal Newhouser had stood the Nats on their collective ears in the opener, 9-0.

Groth's 425-foot swat over Clyde Vollmer's head rubbed out a one-man job by the Nat centerfielder whose bat had lifted the Nats into a 3-3 tie with his two-run homer in the seventh inning and into a 5-4 lead with a two-run double in the ninth.

Today's double defeat left the Griffs tied for fourth place, with the Boston Red Sox who clubbed the White Sox twice to move into the first division.

Calvert Losing Pitcher

Paul Calvert was the personal victim of the explosive Groth. The sinker ball specialist had been wheeled in in the eighth inning after Sid Hudson and Joe Haynes had shown no signs of being able to hold the Tigers.

Paul Campbell saluted Calvert to open the ninth with a single which set off a wild demonstration among the 42,488 Briggs Stadium customers. George Kell followed with his third hit, a single to left and Vic Wertz moved both runners over with an infield out.

Hoot Evers, who had slapped out a first inning home run in the opener against Ray Scarborough and who had already lashed out two singles in the nightcap, was wisely walked, setting the stage for Groth's dramatic hit.

Groth looked over two Calvert pitches, but swung viciously at the third offering. He drove the ball so deep over Vollmer's head that Vollmer stopped chasing it after a run of about 50 feet. He simply turned around and started walking dejectedly to the clubhouse.

Vollmer's Heroics Futile

It was Groth's first hit of the game, but what a beaut it was. Vollmer almost won the ball game by himself for the Nats. In the seventh inning, when the Tigers had staked Rookie Lou Kretlow to a 3-1 lead, Vollmer changed the picture by slapping his eleevnth homer with Ed Stewart aboard to tie the score.

Joe Haynes, however, had his home run ball working today and served up a four-master to Don Kolloway in the seventh and the Tigers recaptured the lead at 4-3 for Kretlow.

Kretlow, who was constantly in trouble, was finally disposed of by Vollmer who doubled in Sherry Robertson and Ed Stewart in the ninth to give the Nats a 5-4 bulge. Robertson opened the round with his second double and Stewart was on first with a walk when Big Boom Vollmer whipped out his two-base knock.

Nats Boot Scoring Chance

The Nats picked up their other run in the fifth inning on Gil Coan's single, Robertson's double and Eddie Robinson's infield out. It was the first run of the day and brought the score board to read, Detroit 2, Washington 1. Hudson, who started, pitched the Tigers into a 3-1 lead in the fifth on two walks and Evers' single and was removed for a pinch-hitter.

The Nats had so many opportunities to score, but none better than in the sixth inning when they loaded the bases on Kretlow, with none out, but still couldn't produce a run.

Newhouser, who won his seventh game, was the whole show in the opener which also saw Lloyd Hittle, the $60,000 left-hander from

Bosox Beat Chicago Twice, 15-3 and 7-5

Chicago, June 12 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox exploded three homers today good for seven runs for a 15-to-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Then they came from behind to chase Billy Pierce and make a sweep of the twin bill with a 7-to-5 win in the nightcap.

The home run contribution to Mel Parnell's eighth success of the campaign were supplied by Birdie Tebbetts, Vern Stephens and Bobby Doerr. Stephens was stroking his fifteenth, while Doerr set the distance pace with a shot off the delivery of Max Surkont that traveled over 400 feet.

Chicago got off to a three-run head start in the finale with the help of a home run by Don Wheeler off Ellis Kinder and a slick double steal in which Luke Appling stole second and Dave Philley raced over the plate.

The Boston comeback started in the sixth when two runs counted on a pair of walks, a single by Ted Williams and Bill Goodman's double. Two more Bosox runs in the eighth tied the count at 4-4.

Scala Suspended For Failure to Report to Oakland

Chicago, June 12 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox today announced the indefinite suspension without pay of Outfielder Gerry Scala. The club said Scala failed to report to Oakland of the Pacific Coast League when optioned.

Sox officials said Scala was reluctant to play so far away from his Bayonne (N. J.) home while his mother is ailing.

A spokesman said the Sox had been informed Scala was visting his ill mother at Bayonne, N. J., but that he had not asked permission and simply left the club.

Decorator Girls Lose Twin Bill

Pottstown, Pa., June 12.—The Takoma Decorators girls softball team of Washington, D. C., lost both ends of a doubleheader with the Cardinalettes here today. The Pottstown team won the opener, 1-0, despite Gladys Tietjen's 2-hit hurling for the visitors. In the nightcap the Cardinalettes won out, 6-5.

Boudreau's Hitting, Lemon's, Garcia's Pitching Does It

Cleveland, June 12 (AP).—Manager Lou Boudreau's clutch hitting and superb pitching by Bob Lemon and Mike Garcia today led the Cleveland Indians to 6-0 and 3-1 victories over the New York Yankees in a doubleheader before the year's largest crowd of 77,543.

Boudreau smashed a home run and walked with the bases loaded to drive in two runs in the nightcap called in the eighth because of grounds. Garcia allowed the Yankees only three hits for his fifth win.

Lemon allowed six hits in the opener to rack up his fifth win.

Lemon, besides his pitching, chipped in with a two-run homer to help his own cause along.

Umpires waved the jubilant Indians to their clubhouse in the second game with one out in the last of the eighth, and Mickey Vernon, who had singled, on second. Showers had interrupted the games four times.

Two lefthanders, Ed Lopat and Tommy Byrne, were charged with the losses. Lopat was cuffed around for 11 safeties in the opener, but Byrne pitched brilliantly in his duel with Garcia. He allowed only four hits and struck out seven Indians, three of them in succession after Boudreau opened the fourth with his second home run of the year.

Garcia, the youthful rookie up from Oklahoma City, fanned six. In the second, Bobby Brown tripled home Yoggi Berra, who had singled, for the only score of the day for New York.

Lopat's defeat at the hands of his "cousins" was his fifth loss to the Tribe against 19 wins. He previously had defeated them once this season.

A four-run seventh inning clinched the game for the Tribe. Lopat had allowed one run and six hits when Joe Gordon opened the home seventh by drawing the game's first walk.

Boudreau's sacrifice, singles by Vernon and Jim Hegan, and Lemon's two-run home run provided the fireworks.

Seminick's 3 Homers Give Phils Split

Philadelphia, June 12 (AP).—Andy Seminick slammed three home runs, two with two men on, as his Philadelphia Phillies' teammates split a double-header with the St. Louis Cardinals today.

The Phils lost the opener 7-3 but took the nightcap 8-3, Phil Pitcher Robin Roberts halted Stan Musial's hitting streak at 14 straight games in the second contest.

Harry (The Cat) Brecheen spotted the Phillies three runs in the first inning of the opener and then tied them in knots for the other eight.

Red Schoendienst and Del Rice homered for the Cards while Seminick drove in all three Phils' runs with his first four-bagger.

Kiner's Homer Beats Giants for Pirates

New York, June 12 (AP).—Ralph Kiner blasted his 14th homer of the season in the seventh inning today to give the Pittsburgh Pirates a 6-5 victory over the New York Giants.

The Pirates belted their ex-mate Kirby Higbe out of the box in the first with a four run splurge which included three hits, two passes and a steal of second.

The Giants knocked Vic Lombardi out in the third, scoring twice before Murry Dickson stemmed the tide.

St. Louis Rally in 8th Wins Opener

St. Louis, June 12 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns and the Philadelphia Athletics divided a pair of free-swinging contests today, the Browns coming from behind with a four-run eighth inning rally to take the opener, 6 to 4, while the Mackmen pounded extra base hits all over the premises to grab the afterpiece, 13 to 10.

Manager Zack Taylor sent six pitchers to the mound in a vain attempt to prolong the Browns' winning streak which was snapped at five.

Connie Mack's outfit banged out 19 base knocks, 10 of them for extra bases. Pete Suder led the attack with a homer, two doubles and three singles. He batted in five runs and scored three.

The Browns also kept their bats busy, pounding out 14 hits off three pitchers.

Trailing 4 to 2 going into the eighth inning of the first game, the Browns teed off of young Bob Schantz for four turns to ice the contest.

Braves Hold Cubs to Split As Charley Grimm Bows Out

Boston, June 12 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs closed out Charley Grimm's long National League managerial career by splitting a double-header with the Braves today before a 19,802 crowd.

After taking the opener, 6-2, the Cubs were blanked, 2-0, by Lefty Johnny Antonelli's four-hit pitching.

Johnny Sain was the loser in the opener.

In the lower half of the first inning, the Braves scored both of their runs on three consecutive singles and a base on balls that drove Lefty Johnny Schmitz from the box with none out.

Grimm then called on Warren Hacker, pulled up from Shreveport early last week, and the right-hander limited the Tribesmen to one hit—a fifth inning single by Elbie Fletcher—while hurling the full nine innings.

The nightcap was a 92 minutes duel between 19-year-old Antonelli and the 39-year-old Dutch Leonard, who was pitching before the Braves' bonus chucker was born.

Al Dark's double and Bill Salkeld's single gave the Braves a run in the third inning and they used their fifth and sixth hits, a Salkeld two-bagger and an Eddie Stanky single, for a second tally in the ninth.

When Grimm came out to the third base coaching box for the last time, the crowd rose to its feet and tendered Jolly Cholly a heartwarming ovasion. He will turn over the managerial reins to Frankie Frisch tomorrow and move upstairs in Wrigley Field as vice president in charge of player personnel.

Old Tutor Helps Cary

Middlecoff Continues Tour With New Swing, Lucky Club

By Ed Sainsbury

Chicago, June 12 (U.P.).—Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the National Open championship tucked away in his golf bag, was ready to continue the tournament tour today, hopeful that his made-over swing and hand-painted putter will continue to give him rich rewards.

Middlecoff, the most erratic of the leaders in the forty-ninth annual open at Medinah Country Club, had to hand-paint his putter after a poor first day before it clicked for two standout rounds and his fifth 1949 victory. And his swing throughout the tournament was a re-do of his old style, made under professional supervision halfway through the winter tour.

J. C. Fondren, a Memphis professional who tutored Middlecoff and made him one of the Nation's top amateurs before he turned pro, revealed the make-over of his pupil's swing.

"Cary was bringing the clubhead up too fast," Fondren said, "and we worked on it this winter. I made him move his club back past his knee before he broke his wrists to move the clubhead up. That corrected it and he's been playing fine golf since."

Except for two of his four National Open rounds, Middlecoff was hardly playing expertly. He scrambled to a first-round 75, which left him well off the pace. Then on his last round, he duplicated his first day's score. Middlecoff's second-round 67, four under par, was the best score of the match. There was only one 68, by Buck White, who finished tied for sixth, and four 69s, one by Middlecoff on his third round.

Middlecoff's two top rounds could be credited to his expert work with the putter. Disappointed after Thursday's 75, he retouched his self-constructed club with his wife's black nail polish and the stick responded nobly Friday and yesterday morning.

"When you're putting badly, anything you can do helps sometimes," Middlecoff said. "I just think I can line them up better with the black surface against the white ball."

Quaid Paces Lee's 13-3 Win

Marlow Quaid smashed a home run and three triples to pact Lee's Tavern to a 13-3 win over Mount Ranier in a Prince Georges Suburban League game yesterday. The win kept Lee's deadlocked with Snug Harbor for the league lead, as Sung Harbor defeated Greenbelt, 12-7. Both teams have won four and lost one.

In other league games, Ahl Brothers edged Capitol Heights, 5-4, and the Triangle trounced Rogers Heights, 15-5.

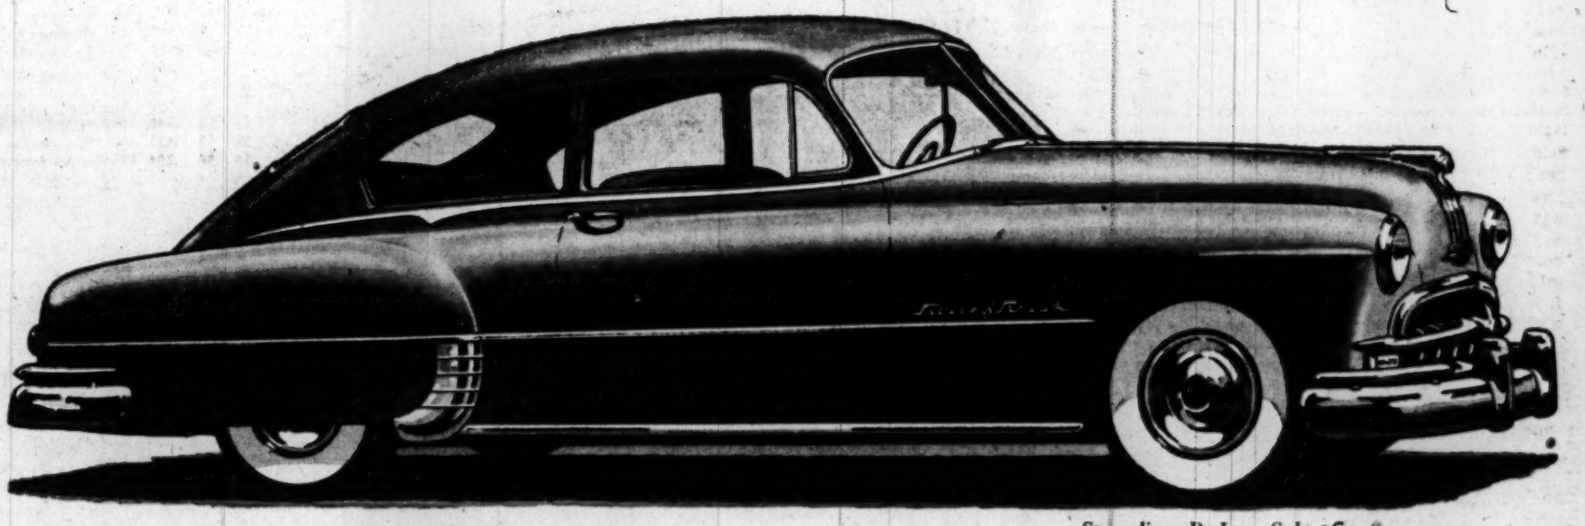
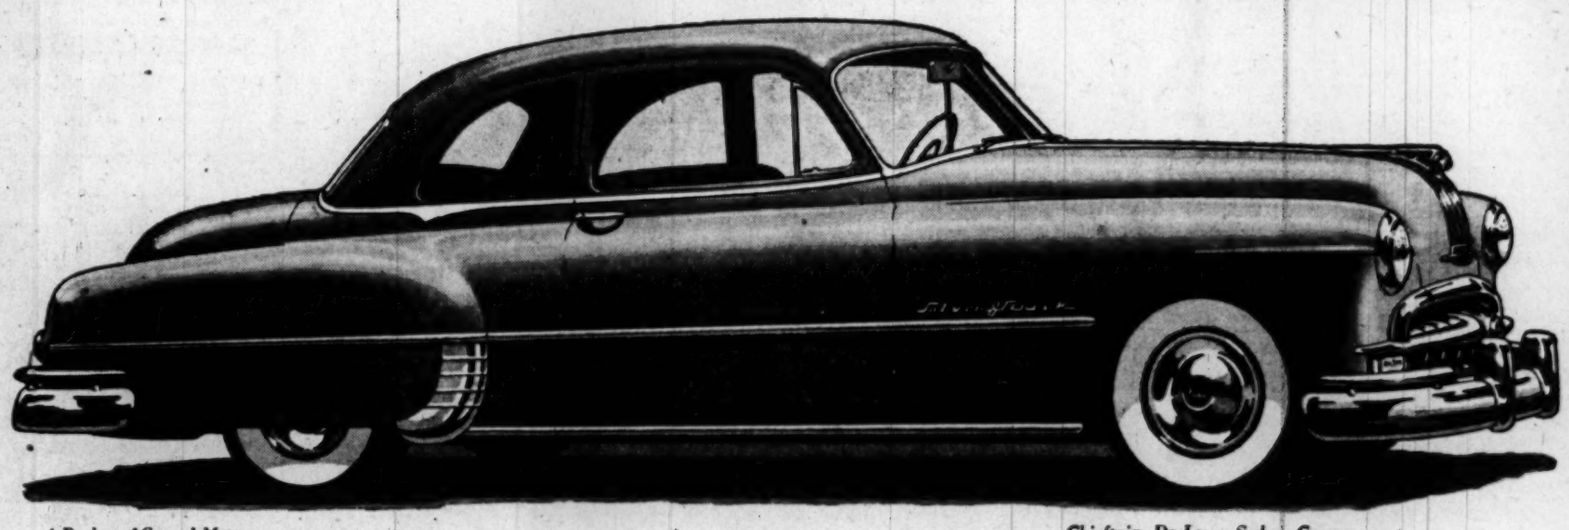
You ought to be driving a '49 PONTIAC



Streamliner De Luxe Sedan Coupe



Chieftain De Luxe Sedan Coupe

Two of America's Most Popular Motor Cars

Pictured above are typical examples of the two smart and separate lines of cars which bear the current imprint of Pontiac goodness—the Streamliner and the Chieftain De Luxe Sedan Coupes.

Together, they command a public preference that continues to grow each week. Yet each is in such demand that, on its own, it ranks among America's most popular cars today. That two cars of such decidedly different appearance should each enjoy such wide acceptance is easy to explain.

THEY'RE BOTH PONTIACS!

While each has its own individualized smartness, both offer all the great basic Pontiac virtues. Both are conspicuously beautiful. Both carry the well-known promise of Pontiac quality—long life, dependability, and fine performance.

Both afford the smooth, enjoyable performance of Pontiac's two great engines—the power-packed straight eight or its equally famous six-cylinder companion, each of which gives peak performance under widely varying conditions.

Since both have Pontiac's exclusive Travelux Ride, both are notable for comfort—and both provide the acknowledged superiority of Fisher Body craftsmanship.

And finally, both represent unusual values—a very fine product at a very low price. Either one you choose will make you mighty happy. We will welcome a visit from you any time.

The Most Beautiful Thing on Wheels—Plus All These Added Advantages!

1. America's Lowest-Priced Straight Eight. 2. Completely New Bodies by Fisher. 3. Wider Seats—Added Room. 4. Wide, Easy-Access Doors. 5. New Wide-Horizon Curved Windshield. 6. New Dial-Cluster Dash. 7. New Finger-Tip Starter Button on Instrument Panel. 8. New Low-Pressure Tires, 15" Wheels and Wider Rims. 9. Exclusive New "Travelux" Ride. 10. Pontiac Famous Improved Straight Eight and Six Cylinder Engines. 11. New Ventilating System. 12. Lowest-Priced Car with General Motors Hydra-Matic Drive*. 13. Carry-More Luggage Compartment. 14. Safe-T-View Driver View.

Dear Folks: Racing Secretary Freddie Burton has arranged an interesting feature for the Monday program. Th race is named The Retreat after Assistant General Manager Leeds Riely's farm on the Shenandoah River. While the test is for 3-year-olds and up the chief interest wil. be in the showing of three sophomores. Dick Pending's Chilibones has won three straigh. here, but this time will be asked to go a mile and an eighth. C. B. Carter's Speaker came through with a strong stretch drive to win his previous outing. Justin Funkhouser's Super Flight has won two of her last three starts. However, 3-year-olds have a way of folding when opposed by older horses. It will be interesting to see if this trio can handle h. seasoned Ariel Gift, a 7-year-old owned by Miss Virginia McKinney of Washington.—BILL

Driver Injured, 2 Cars Wrecked In Hybla Races

One driver was injured, two cars wrecked and a new speed record set yesterday as big car racing was introduced before 2400 persons on the half-mile dirt track at the Hybla Valley Speedway.

Johnny Favinger, of Collegeville, Pa., former midget auto driver, captured the 20-lap feature event. Buster Keller, of Fairlawn, N. J., was second, and Dick Fries, of Reading, Pa., third. Favinger, driving a Riley Special, drove the 10 miles in 5:00.21.

Harry Coates, of Norristown, Pa., was taken to Alexandria General Hospital where it took seven stitches to close a cut on the right side of his face suffered when he collided with Mel Weidner, of Laureldale, Pa., in the first eight-lap qualifying heat. Weidner's car spun on the turn in the fourth lap and Coates struck him broadside.

It was Weidner, who earlier set the new track record for Hybla in the time trials. He toured the half-mile in 27.54 seconds to break the old record of 27.9 seconds held by Shorty Bowers, Hagerstown, Md., roadster pilot.

Lombardo Gives Up Speed Test

Lake Placid, N. Y., June 12 (AP). Band Leader Guy Lombardo and Industrialist Henry J. Kaiser today abandoned attempts to crack the world's speedboat record on Lake Placid when Kaiser's high-powered Aluminum First ran into mechanical trouble again.

Norman Lauterbach of Newport News, Va., attempted a trial spin in the 32-foot craft. A universal joint broke and the test was called off. Lombardo would have piloted the speedboat in a shot at the late Sir Malcolm Campbell's world mark of 141.74 miles an hour if the Aluminum First had behaved.

Yesterday a defective propellor shaft caused Lombardo to postpone his speed runs.

Wednesday Scrap Set In Detroit

New York, June 12 (AP).—Marcel Cerdan makes the first defense of his middleweight championship against erratic Jake La Motta of New York in a 15-rounder in Detroit's Briggs Stadium Wednesday. clouter is favored to retain his crown, although the odds retain his crown, although the odds have begun to come down from the original 1 to 2. Heavy backing for the in-and-out Bronx bull has dropped the price to 5 to 9 with the prospect of a further cut by fight time.

Although the champion is four years older than Jake and has been fighting since 1935, he is given the edge because of condition. Cerdan went 15 rounds twice last year, losing and then winning from Belgium's Cyrille Delannoit. In addition Cerdan battered Tony Zale into submission in 11 rounds (winning on a 12-round knockout under New Jersey rules) and still was fresh when the fight ended.

La Motta has fought 15 rounds only once. He lost over that route to Fritzie Zivic in 1943. He also dropped a 12-rounder to Ray Robinson in 1945. Those were La Motta's best years. He's taken plenty of punches since then.

Jake's seemingly indifferent attitude has made it difficult to forecast the outcome of his fights. But this is his first crack at a title in nine years of boxing and he may be ready for the fight of his life.

With Ya Motta in shape for a determined effort, Cerdan may have his hands full.

Promoter Nick Londes has announced that the advance sale of $125,000 indicates a gate of more than $300,000.

Cerdan completed his sparring preparations with three rounds at Woodward Gymnasium. LaMotta also went three rounds at the Sportsman's Gym. Overflow crows watched the workouts.

Promoter Londes said the brisk sale of tickets indicated a crowd of about 40,000 at Briggs Stadium, home park of the Detroit Tigers. The stadium can accomodate 54,000 for a ball game and 61,000 for a fight.

10-Year-Old Shows Way In Boat Race

By Happy Walker

Determined to prove that experience and not age counts in this speed boat business, little Jack Lanier, age 10, went into the final event of the Spring Power Race series and showed older hands that his previous tries in the series had taught him the know-how of staying out front.

Encouraged by his father, Air Force Maj. John Lanier, young Jack took advantage of some fine coaching by well-known power boat racer Earle Hildebrand during off-school hours, and showed his heels to the other contestants in the first heat of the 10-horsepower outboard class winning first place and 400 points.

In the second heat he again led the pack until a broken steering wheel cut his entry, Miss Annie Laurie, out of the running.

C. D. Graham, Vienna, Va., in Chubby and A. G. Armistead, Washington, in Lyman Big Four, had their share of trouble, all capsizing in the chop caused by stiff-up river winds. Bith drivers recovered their boats and motors handily.

A fluke race developed when Monroe Gregory in Dugong led the first three placers around the wrong buoy disqualifying all four in the unlimited outboard class.

NATS—From Page 8

Nats Lose Two Games To Detroit

Oakland, make his first major league appearance.

Hittle relieved Ray Scarborough, who couldn't find the plate, walking four in the first inning and also pitching a home run ball to Evers before Hittle was introduced to the American League.

Scarborough Chased In First

Firing the ball over with that whiplash delivery of his, Newhouser permitted only two Nats to get as far as second base in the opener.

Eddie Robinson solved him for a double with two away in the second inning and Mark Christman reached second in the seventh inning on a walk and Robinson's single, also hit with two away. Except for those two lapses, Prince Hal was superb. He walked only one and struck out six.

Scarborough started for the Nats in search of his sixth victory, but inability to find the plate expelled him from the contest before the 4-run first inning was over.

Scarborough walked four in his two thirds of an inning stint and also yielded a two-run homer to Hoot Evers, the only hit in the inning before Hittle could be rushed in. Hittle, who had never seen a major league park until Saturday, was no immediate success.

Hittle Yields Five Runs

Obviously nervous in his big league debut, the compactly built red-head walked Newhouser with the bases loaded to force in the fourth run of the inning, but got Don Kolloway on an outfield fly to retire the side, at long last.

After his shaky start, Hittle settled down to four innings of stout pitching. His wildness—he walked seven in 1 1/3 innings—cost him a run in the sixth when he walked Kolloway and then wild-pitched him to second from where he scored on George Kell's single.

In the seventh, however, the Tigers really dug in on him, assaulting him for four more runs on five hits, which included doubles by Johnny Groth and Kell.

Before the roof caved in on him in the seventh, Hittle held the Tigers to one run and only three hits, one of them an infield tap and another a humpty-dumpty single to right center.

He also contributed one of the Nats' four hits, lining out a solid single to center against Newhouser in the third inning.

Treasury Plans To Employ 600 For Fall Jobs

JOBS: Treasury's Bureau of Disbursements plans to hire 600 people in the low clerical grades for temporary duty in the late fall. The jobs will last an average of five months.

Treasury has requested funds from Congress in the third deficiency bill for its proposed expansion.

The employes would write checks to the estimated 14,255,000 GIs who will be paid a dividend by VA's national service life insurance. It's estimtaed that the check-writing will start around November 1 and that the 600-man staff will be able to get out an average of 200,000 checks daily.

STORY: Civil Service Commissioner James M. Mitchell was making a speech on personnel administration. In it he said that the Japanese people had resisted a position classification program for their government. A wag in the audience shouted:

"I guess they don't have a yen for it."

GUN FACTORY: In a talk with employe leaders, Rear Admiral A. G. Noble of Navy's Ordnance Bureau has confirmed reports of a possible 25 per cent lay-off at the Navy Gun Factory here.

Noble promised, however, to get as many contracts as possible for the factory in order to lighten the lay-off blow. He said some new work would be shifted here.

At the conference several employe leaders suggested the factory be placed on a four-day workweek to spread the work among its 10,500 employes. The suggestion was opposed by about half of the employes present. Noble said he couldn't consider such a proposal unless it had full employe support.

The employes also proposed that the officials urge eligible employes to retire. Noble explained that optional retirement was up to the employes, and besides, that many of the old-timers had experience and know-how of prime importance to the factory's operations.

Noble also confirmed reports that the new 4-cent an hour average pay boost would have to be absorbed, resulting in lay-offs for several hundred more employes.

CUSTOMS: David B. Strubinger is its new chief of budget and management. Frank Gatschel is the new budget officer. He transferred from the Housing Expeditor's Office . . . DPC: The Senate Judiciary Committee is still sitting on the nominations of the three men to be members of the Displaced Persons Commission. Why? No one seems to know . . . DEBATE: Commerce Secretary Sawyer has agreed to a radio debate with Henry Wallace, one of his predecessors.

FEDERAL HOUSING is giving lay-off notices to a few of its field employes. At least 150 here will have to be fired unless the Senate restores budget cuts made by the House . . . HEARINGS on the bill to provide adequate compensation for Federal workers who are injured on the jobs will begin today before a subcommittee headed by Senator Douglas (D., Ill.) . . . . Civil Service Commissioner Mitchell will speak Thursday at a meeting of the Baltimore Federal Personnel Council to be held at the Fort Meade Civilian Club.

FIRINGS: Three classes of temporary and war service employes in classified jobs have been ordered fired by Civil Service.

Social workers in jobs rated P-1 through P-3 and who failed the recent competitive test must be fired by July 15. Those who didn't make high enough grade on the test to be reached for certification must go before October 30. The order doesn't apply to VA.

Advisors in education in grades P-6, 7 and 8, and in CAF-13, 14, and 15 must be fired by July 1. Nonstatus librarians must be separated by August 1. Those in grades P-2 through P-5 come under the notice.

JOB NEWS: Civil Service will announce exams soon for chauffeur, truck driver and motor vehicle dispatcher. The jobs will pay from $2152 to $2799 . . . The three big Federal worker States are: California, 205,000; New York, 181,000, and Pennsylvania, 111,600. . . . Three-quarters of all Federal employes are in the military agencies, VA, and Post Office Department.

Some of Austrian Art Treasures Expected to Be Exhibited Here

Deadlocks Continue in 3 Strikes Here

Peace Moves Possible Early This Week; No Meetings Today

Deadlocks continued in the District's three strike situations over the weekend and no peace meetings were set for today. However, some peace moves may be made early this week.

Some 8000 carpenters and laborers, about 100 pie company salesmen-truck drivers and some 40 Terminal Market truck drivers are on strike. A number of other workers are laid off because of the disputes, or are supporting the strikers.

The newest conflict, that of Truck Drivers Local 639 and eight Terminal Market produce houses at 5th st. and Florida ave. ne., may be the subject of peace moves today or tomorrow, a union official said.

However, Federal Conciliator Gilbert S. McCutcheon, who is assigned to this dispute, said he did not have any negotiating sessions scheduled between the parties. The strike began Friday.

The drivers, who are asking for reduction of their 54-hour work week to 48 hours without cut in pay, are supported by some 60 members of Warehouse Employes Local 730, the union estimates. The warehousemen again bolstered the drivers' picket lines when they were resumed early today, a Local 730 official said. Some 20 to 25 non-union market workers also are not working, he added.

Federal Conciliator Henry G. Baker, jr., said he might start trying today to bring about negotiations between Bakery Salesmen's Local 33 and the city's four major pie companies.

This strike enters its eleventh day today, with some 200 pie bakers out of work.

The double AFL carpenters-laborers dispute, which has stopped or delayed some 100 million dollars' worth of construction in the area, appears to be no nearer settlement than it was when it began 12 days ago.

A builders' and subcontractors' meeting has been set for 2 p. m. Tuesday to discuss the situation, which involves a demand of 10 cents more an hour on the carpenters' $2.40 pay rate, and 40 cents more an hour on the laborers' $1.35 rate.

Father Possesses 'Heart From God,' His Wife Writes

A father with "a heart from God" was nominated yesterday by his wife as the Ideal Father of Greater Washington in the contest being conducted by The Washington Post.

He is Sharon G. Highsmith of 2805 6th st. ne., a guard with the Public Buildings Administration. Mrs. Highsmith wrote that when they were married, her husband took in and fathered her two orphaned brothers. He fathered his own children, looks after two grandsons when he has a chance, and in addition is "fathering" young people not of his family but who live in the same home.

Nominations for the Ideal Father must reach The Washington Post by the close of business Thursday. The one chosen, with his family, will be guests at dinner at the Hotel Statler next Sunday, Father's Day, and at a theater afterward.

Strawberry Festival Set

An ice cream-strawberry festival will be given by the Northminster Guild of Northminster Presbyterian Church, Alaska ave. and Kalmia rd. nw., on the church lawn at 5 p. m. Friday.

Seeks Funds From Congress

Ruhland Urges Block Drive To Improve Slum Sanitation

A block-by-block drive to improve sanitation standards in the District's slum areas was advocated yesterday by Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer.

Dr. Ruhland said if Congress would grant sufficient funds, he would advocate starting such a program with the Bureau of Public Health Engineering acting as a spearhead.

He pointed out that during the war, sewer lines could not be extended and bathroom equipment was unavailable, but now that this shortage is over an intensive campaign was advisable.

At present, the Board for Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings has a backlog of 800 structures awaiting inspection so the machinery may be started to require repair or demolition. Dr. Ruhland's program would supplement this program in the sanitary field.

Eight years ago Dr. Rhland proposed a similar type program, b the funds for additional help not forthcoming and the idea died. He did, however, get a house-to-house check started by volunteers to determine the immunity status of residents with respect to various diseases. Wartime overcrowding emphasized the dange. of epidemics.

Meanwhile, Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Hayes, chairman of the Condemnation Board, has started work on a three-point study of the present procedures for submission to Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner.

Colonel Hayes is studying how to improve the present machinery on condemnations, what additio l powers would aid in the process and what additional personnel could assist in the enforcement program. The board now is made up of three District officials working on a part-time basis and a staff o employes borrowed from other departments.

Proposals have been made for the employment of several full-time inspectors in the field and a full-time engineer to check building plans.

Plans Held Too Sumptuous

Senate's New Building Fuss Due to Reopen on Tuesday

The Senate's family squabble over the proposed 20-million-dollar new Senate Office Building will erupt again Tuesday in two scheduled committee meetings.

Senator Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.), chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee, has called a committee meeting Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. at which Capitol Architect David Lynn will present a proposal for constructing only a portion of the proposed new Senate quarters at a reduced cost.

A half-hour earlier, Senator J. Allen Ellender (D., La.), arch foe of the new building, will bring his Senate Appropriations Subcommittee together to start marking up the House-passed legislative supply bill.

The Budget Bureau has requested a 10-million-dollar item in that measure to start work on the new Senate building. Two Senators urged Ellender's group on Friday to grant the request. The House deleted it.

Ellender said yesterday he will make every effort to keep the building item out of the bill when the Appropriations Committee acts on it.

"And if necessary I am prepared to fight it on the Senate floor," he said.

Lynn was instructed to work out a less costly plan for an initial start on the proposed seven-story, marble structure after several members of the Senate Public Works Committee attacked the blueprint at a hearing last week.

Last night both Chavez and Ellender claimed mounting support for their cause.

Alley Quarrel

Man Is Killed in Pistol Duel After Argument Over Wallet

A pistol duel following an argument over a lost wallet resulted in a man's death yesterday.

In a sunlit alley in the 1600 block of Church st. nw., police said, Lonnie Watkins, 36, a laborer who lives at 1628 Church st., shot Floyd Walton, 44, of 1624 Church st., as both men drew guns.

Walter Cook, homicide detective, said the duel climaxed a dispute in which Walton accused Watkins of having information about his missing wallet, containing money, his driver's license and other papers.

After arguing with Watkins at his home, police said Walton left the house, but continued his harangue in the alley.

Watkins came out of his house with a pistol, and Walton drew a gun from his pocket. Watkins fired, the bullet striking Walton in the neck. He was pronounced dead at 4:35 p. m.

Pvts. A. L. Kragh and Sidney Stratton of the Third Precinct arrested Watkins a few minutes later at his home. He was held pending an inquest.

Further Delay Is Expected on D. C. Fire Code

Study to Determine Whether Egress Law Ought to Be Eased

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Enforcement of the District's fire egress code is headed for another postponement, this time to permit a thorough study to determine whether requirements should be eased.

At two hearings last month, officials of several organizations urged a moratorium on enforcement of the fire safety building regulations to allow additional study.

The egress code spells out requirements to insure safety for residents of various types of structures in the District. It was adopted after disasters caused serious loss of life in several cities.

In the making since 1945, it was postponed four times until January 1, 1949, but this date too was extended and enforcement is still in abeyance.

Among those calling for delays of three months to a year were the Washington Property Owners Association, the Federation of Citizens Associations, Federation of Civic Associations and the Washington Real Estate Board.

Paul J. Miller, president of the Washington Guest House Association, said $10,000 to $15,000 would be required to bring some three-story houses now used as rooming establishments up to the code standards. In many cases these are operated by widows and others of low income and such requirements would amount to "confiscation," he said.

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, said the "strong representations" made at the hearings on the need for delay "must be studied very carefully."

He disclosed that regulations covering office buildings, which have had low fire records, are also being restudied to determine whether the requirements should be eased.

Hotels Complain

Complaints from hotel officials that it is impractical to require closing of transoms and elimination of slatted doors on rooms, also are under consideration, General Young said. The hotel men argued that such openings aided in discovering fires as a result of smoke seeping out. Acting Fire Marshal R. E. Warfield countered, however, that such requirements kept fires bottled up and permitted occupants of other parts of the building to escape uninjured.

General Young declined comment on which side was correct in his opinion, but pointed out that regulations which result in widespread dissatisfaction and discomfort are often unenforceable. The closed transom and slatted door may be in that category, he explained.

At present, his aides are concentrating on studies of categories of structures where "excess enforcement" under the code may cause serious hardship and conversion of use. A second phase is a study of "categories of usage where it can be shown the risk is so small, it is unfair to pass on to the consumer the great costs involved in carrying out the regulations."

Meanwhile, Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Hayes, assistant Engineer Commissioner, is working up a plan of priorities for alteration of schools to meet the basic code requirements.

The priorities will be keyed to the age of the structure, number of children attending, whether it is fire resistant or not, and how serious the reported deficiencies are.

An item of $75,000 has been included in the final 1950 budget to cover elimination of the most serious risks reported by the fire marshal. The remainder of the funds will be asked in the 1951 budget, General Young said.

Young Tenor Makes Hit At Gallery

By Paul Hume

Eddy Ruhl made a smash hit last night in his Washington debut at the National Gallery.

The handsome young tenor has a voice of great power, capable of beautiful sound. His real love is opera. This he sings with understanding and style. His training both abroad and in this country tends toward the Italianate style. He might well avoid some of the emotional excesses employed by many opera singers without harming his own warm presentation of such music.

It was good to hear three seldom-sung arias. One from Giordano's Fedora, one from Cilea's L'Arlesiana, and the big tenor page from the last act of Puccini's Turandot gave Ruhl a chance to show off his top notes, the best in his voice.

Soft Voice Silken to Hear

Most of his songs were slow in pace, and all of one mood. Singers should learn to stay with music they know, love and understand. Few artists can command every style—why try? Some of Ruhl's songs were not worthy of place in a National Gallery program, but his Lieder and French songs, though not profound, were very good.

In such moments as Debussy's Romance, the soft voice was skillfully handled and silken to hear. But in full voice there is some habit of tone production which gives most vowels an undesirable throaty quality which must be changed if Ruhl wants to reach the top.

Half a Dozen Encores

Top in his case is opera. He has the voice, looks and feeling for the Italian wing. Music as an art does not appeal strongly to him, but in this country a tenor can make money being an artist, if he owns Ruhl's voice and gets the best out of it.

There were nearly half a dozen encores, all in the same vein as the recital proper. More light and lively music would help to develop this voice correctly. Willard Sektberg played sound accompaniments in every mood. His own group of solos drew a brief encore.

Water Supply Extension Plans Tabled

Plans for a 70-million-dollar expansion of the District water supply system to provide for increasing population have been tabled for fiscal year 1950, which begins July 1.

Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, said yesterday that present facilities, with improvements scheduled during the year, are expected to prove adequate for present needs.

During the past nine months, General Young has been collaborating with David V. Auld, superintendent of the District Water Division, and E. A. Schmitt, chief of the local Water Supply Division, Army Engineers, in preparation of plans to provide sufficient water to supply anticipated population of 1,090,000 by 1970.

At present, the base capacity of the water system often is exceeded by demand, and reserve water must be used, particularly during hot weather.

General Young said other construction needs are more immediate, and will have to be considered first.

Quick Action Brings Help To Woman, 71

2 Phone Operators Join Forces to Aid Victim of Fainting

Two alert telephone operators joined forces early yesterday to bring help to a 71-year-old woman who had fainted from loss of blood from an accidental leg wound.

The woman was Miss Bertie M. Essig, retired Census Bureau worker, who lives alone in a six-room house at 812 7th st. sw.

The operators were Miss Eloise Roediger of 8717 Piney Branch rd., Silver Spring, who was on the information switchboard, and Miss Edna M. Polen of 5009 Addison rd., Seat Pleasant, Md., who was acting chief operator at the Metropolitan exchange.

"Miss Roediger came in to me," Miss Polen said, "and told me she had a party on the line who apparently had fainted. She asked me to come in on the line. I did, and could hear heavy breathing but couldn't attract an answer.

"We got Miss Essig's address and then I got the number of a next-door neighbor and asked her to go over to Miss Essig's home while I waited on the line. We also held Miss Essig's line open.

"The neighbor returned and told me she couldn't get in, and so I then called police. I held Miss Essig's line open until I could hear banging on the door. Then I heard men's voices and one said, 'Put on a tourniquet.'

"Next, police officers came on the line and said they were there. I cleared the line then so they could call an ambulance."

Police said Miss Essig apparently had cut her leg on a wire protruding from a cot. She was unconscious in a rocking chair with the telephone receiver in her lap when they arrived.

They said she had lost a great deal of blood. A physician, Dr. Walter Price, arrived a few moments after the officers broke a window to enter Miss Essig's home.

Miss Essig was in serious condition yeterday at Sibley Hospital suffering from shock and loss of blood.

Court-Martial In Chapel Fire Opens Today

The court martial of Air Force Pfc. George E. Falterman, 19, of New York, charged with statutory arson in connection with a $75,000 fire at Bolling Chapel last February 24, will open today at 9 a. m. at Bolling Air Force Base.

The soldier admitted setting fire to the structure, Air Force authorities said, and was committed to Walter Reed Hospital for mental observation.

Tests showed Falterman to be mentally competent, it was reported.

Counsel for Falterman at the general court martial will be Capt. William D. Holeman, 30, of 214 Portland st. se. The trial judge advocate (prosecutor) will be Lieut. William R. Kenney, 27, of Glen Burnie, Md.

Under the 96th Article of War, covering arson, the offense carries a penalty of a $5000 fine, 20 years' imprisonment or both.

3 Women Are Injured As Auto Hits Streetcar

Two Student Nurses From Gallinger Hurt As Machine Overturns At 13th and F Sts.

Two Gallinger Hospital student nurses and another woman were injured last night when their automobile collided with a streetcar at 13th and F sts. nw.

The impact spun the automobile around. The car then turned over and caught fire. Several hundred persons were attracted to the scene by the collision and police sirens.

At Emergency Hospital, the victims, suffering cuts, bruises and possible internal injuries, were identified as Miss Helen Carlin, 21, and Miss May Robinson, 21, both student nurses, and Clara Jane O'Toole, 22, who was visiting them. Miss O'Toole was said to be from McKeesport, Pa. The other two reside at the Gallinger Nurses Home.

Streetcar Passengers Unhurt

Police said none of the streetcar's passengers was hurt. Operator of the streetcar was identified as James L. Buckler, 23, of 1441 11th st. se.

Police Pvt. Alvin Bailey, 3501 13th st. nw., who was on duty at the intersection at the time, witnessed the crash. He and other witnesses said the automobile and streetcar were going "fast." The automobile, he said, apparently went through a red light.

Traffic was blocked at the intersection for a quarter hour until the streetcar and automobile could be removed.

In another accident, a vocational school student doubling as a cab driver, police said, fell asleep at the wheel of his cab his yesterday morning and it went over a curb at 14th and G sts. nw., knocking down a police telephone box.

Charles F. Harper, 30, of 1719 Willard st. nw., the driver, said he had been at the wheel eight hours when the accident occurred. He said he attends Sterling Vocational School and supports himself and mother by driving.

He was uninjured. Damage to the rented cab was estimated at $150.

Ruhland Asks Veterinarian In Pound Job

The District Pound is clean, but its methods of destroying "unclaimed animals" is open to question on humaneness," Dr. George C. Ruhland, Health Officer, said last night.

Dr. Ruhland said he planned to report these findings to the District Commissioners this week as the result of an inspection of the institution.

The health officer said the inspection showed 20 dogs in the lethal chamber at one time. The check followed receipt of complaints of "unhygienic, cruel practices" at the pound. These were denied by Poundmaster Frank B. Marks.

Dr. Ruhland said he would recommend employment of a veterinarian as poundmaster to assure the community that the animals are properly cared for.

Dr. Ruhland favors a bill turning over unclaimed dogs at the pound for use in medical research. Marks opposed the legislation in a hearing before the District Commissioners.

Walter Reed Hails Red Cross Aides

Members of the Army Medical Center chapter of the American Red Cross volunteer services were praised yesterday for nearly 53,000 hours of work.

They were lauded at graduation ceremonies in the formal gardens of Walter Reed General Hospital for 46 members who have completed training for service with the chapter.

Maj. Gen. Paul H. Streit, commandant of the center, who hailed the amount of time served, praised the volunteers especially for their "concern for the patient as an individual by emphasizing the value of small personal services, so important in a large hospital."

Diplomas were presented to 31 Arts and Skills volunteers by Mrs. Bruce Roberts, chairman of this service for the District Red Cross chapter. Mrs. Albert Atkinson, chairman of Gray Lady Service, American Red Cross, and Mrs. H. H. Hulbbert, unit chairman of the Gray Lady Service, presented diplomas to 15 Gray Lady graduates.

Other volunteer Red Cross services operating at the center include Canteen, Motor, Nurses' Aide, Staff Aide and Production.

Man Puts Up Fight In Squad Car After Arrest By Police

A full-blown tempest inside a teapot was nothing to the battle put up early yesterday inside a police car by a man arrested 10 minutes before on a drunk charge.

Results were visits to hospitals for patching up the defendant and one of the two officers in the car, plus an additional charge against Eugene Penland, 36, Norwalk, Conn., of assaulting a policeman.

Pvts. Thomas H. Carpenter and Alfred F. Mode said they put Penland in the rear seat of their squad car at 10th st. and New York ave. nw.

As they neared Police headquarters, the officers said, Penland, with his feet, gave the front seat such a shove that banged Mode's head on the windshield.

When he was subdued, Penland required treatment at Gallinger Hospital for cuts and bruises, before being locked up.

Mrs. Flora Miller

Lexington, Va., June 12 (AP).—Mrs. Flora Boyce McElwee Miller, 87-year-old mother of gubernatorial candidate Francis Pickens Miller, died here today. She was a native of Lexington.

Mrs. Miller had made her home with her brother, William M. McElwee, here for several years.

For years Mrs. Miller was teacher of the woman's Bible class of the Lexington Presbyterian Church. She was a graduate of Mary Baldwin Seminary at Staunton.

Until her death, "Miss Flora"—as she way known here by every one—remembered well the horseback rides Gen. Robert E. Lee gave her when she was 5 years old. She remembered, too, and had some of them to show the toys General Lee sent her at Christmas years ago.

William R. Timken

Croton-on-Hudson, N. Y., June 12 (AP). — William R. Timken, 83, last of the three founders of the Timken Roller Bearing Co., died last night at his estate here. Mr. Timken retired in 1930.

Col. Michela, U. S. Aide at Prague, Dies

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 12 (U.P.).—Col. Joseph A. Michela, 46, U. S. military attache here for two years, died unexpectedly today after a heart attack and cerebral hemorrhage at his summer home in Jloviste near Prague.

This body will be flown back to the United States for burial.

Michela was military attache in Moscow from November, 1941, to October, 1943, after having served in 1940 and 1941 as assistant military attache in the Soviet capital.

Born at Iron Mountain, Mich., he was graduated from West Point in 1928 and later attended Columbia University, from which he received a B. A. degree in 1937.

In December, 1942, he was made a temporary brigadier general and later was attached to the General Staff in Washington. He held the Legion of Merit.

Colonel Michela is survived by his wife and a son, Robert, 11, who is in school in Switzerland. Colonel Michela's home was in Duluth, Minn.

Ralph S. Bubb, Architect for PBA, Dies

Ralph S. Bubb, 65, a Public Buildings Administration architect and designer of the homes in Montgomery Hills subdivision, died of a heart ailment Saturday at Garfield Hospital. He had been ill three weeks.

A native Washingtonian, Mr. Bubb was educated in public schools here and at George Washington University. He moved to North Woodside, Silver Spring, 25 years ago. His home was at 9407 Columbia blvd.

In 1917, Mr. Bubb served in Panama as an architect with the Treasury Department. Later he was employed by several private firms here in the same capacity, and about 19 years ago was architect for the Montgomery Hills residences.

He reentered the Government in 1931, joining the Federal Works Agency.

Mr. Bubb is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Bubb, of the Columbia blvd. address; a daughter, Mrs. Joseph C. Tichy, of Atlanta, Ga.; a sister, Miss Ethel Bubb, of Washington; a brother, John Carroll Bubb, Westfield, N. J.; and one grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. Tuesday at Grace Episcopal Church, Silver Spring. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Negro Family In White Area Again Plagued

False classified advertisements were placed in three Washington papers yesterday to add to the annoyance of a Negro family which moved into River Terrace, a white neighborhood, in April.

The ads offering for sale the family's home and calling for a cook-maid gave the address of Mr. and Mrs. Odis Von Blasingame, 3303 Ames st. ne. The Blasingames with their infant son, Odis, jr., have been subjected to other nuisances since they purchased their home.

Their home has been stoned and windows broken, a trash fire of undetermined origin broke out in their back yard; their telephone line and the top of their automobile cut.

The two ads in The Washington Post were telephoned to the Classified Advertising Dpartment Saturday before 3:30 p. m. The caller said he was Blasingame, gave his address as 3550 Grant st ne., and telephone number as TRinidad 7416. The phone number is Blasingame's but the address is fictitious. The Blasingames formerly lived at 3750 Grant st. ne.

Ads similar to those appearing in The Washington Post also were carried by the Sunday Star. The Times-Herald carried one ad for a cook.

Blasingame said yesterday, in a report to police, that his telephone started ringing at 7 a. m. and continued at about 10-minute intervals. "Ten or 12" persons showed up in person, he said.

Fourteenth Precinct police began an investigation.

An official of the Classified Advertising Department of The Washington Post explained yesterday that classified ads are taken either by telephone or from individuals who come to the lobby of The Post building. The ad was accepted as authentic, he said.

Kensington Fireman Burned at $800 Blaze

Maynard Hawkins, deputy chief of the Kensington Volunteer Fire Department, was burned slightly on the hands and face by flying embers last night while fighting a blaze at 3119 Jennings rd., Kensington.

The fire was in the home of Charles Barnes. Louis Kengla, department chief, said it was confined to the attic with loss of $800. He said the cause may have been a cigarette.

Seniors Hear Sermon at Georgetown

The Right Rev. Jeremiah F. Minihan, pastor of St. Catherine's Church, Norwood, Mass., yesterday warned Georgetown University seniors that the only way to remedy conditions in the world is "by the peaceful preaching and exemplary living of Christian principles."

Monsignor Minihan, who was a star center on the university football team in 1925, spoke to the 1085 seniors at the school's 150th baccalaureate service. Graduation ceremonies will be at 5 p. m. today on the college lawn at 37th and O sts. nw. In case of rain the exercises will be in Constitution Hall.

"Irreligion, infidelity and atheism" are forces in the lives of men everywhere," Msgr. Minihan said. "For social justice, social charity, and the saving lessons of supernatural revelation, men and nations substitute exploitation, class hatred and devastating war," he declared.

Last night 45 awards were presented to students in the College of Arts and Sciences and the Schools of Law and Foreign Service at class night exercises. A few of the prizes were won by seniors before this year, but presentation was postponed until their graduation.

Greater Washington prize winners were:

Georges R. Edelen, Arlington, Va., who received the Pendergast Medal for the best essay on English literature for 1947, the Ryan Medal for the highest average during senior year in psychology, natural theology and ethics, and the Quicksall Medal for the best oral examination in Shakespeare.

John V. Graham of Washington, co-winner of the Horace Medal for proficiency in the Odes of Horace.

Vincent S. Lamb of Arlington, honorable mention for excellence in graduate study in the School of Law.

Charles W. Hart and Edgar J. Jenkins, both of Washington, $15 faculty prizes as winners of preliminary debates in the School of Law.

Reginald K. Bailey of Arlington, Va., $25 second prize as the senior in the afternoon section maintaining second highest average for the year in the School of Law.

Andre Maurice Kahn of Washington, the Walsh Gold Medal for the highest average in International Law in the School of Foreign Service.

Emmett J. Theisen of Washington, the Notz Gold Medal for the highest average in Economic Principles, School of Foreign Service.

James T. R. Duncan, Arlington, the Labat Gold Medal for the student who has done most to promote interest and activities in the French language and culture.

Warren J. LeMon of Arlington, Va., the Envoy Magazine prize for the best fiction article.

Miner Graduates Hear Gerstenfeld on Equality

All should be thankful for "an America where, at least, segregation can be condemned and where equality is not the equality of slaves," Dr. Norman Gerstenfeld, spiritual leader of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, said yesterday.

The cleric made his remarks in delivering the main address at baccalaureate ceremonies for the graduating class of Miner Teachers College held in Armstrong High School yesterday. The class of 81 will be graduated at exercises slated for Thursday.

Referring to recent statistics that 73 per cent of crime in the District is committed by Negroes, Dr. Gerstenfeld declared, "All I can say is that this is retribution to the white man for the special matrix of prejudice and discrimination which he allows to survive."

Dr. Gerstenfeld praised Dr. Ralph Bunche, senior director of the United Nations Trusteeship Council, and declared that a race that can produce a man like Dr. Bunche has great potential influence.

Dr. Eugene A. Clark, college president, presided at the ceremonies attended by almost 1000. Music was supplied by the college choir and Howard University chamber orchestra.

The Rev. Colbert H. Pearson, pastor of the Berean Baptist Church, pronounced the invocation and the benediction.

Chevy Chase College Graduates 49 Today

Chevy Chase Junior College will graduate 49 at commencement exercises at 10 a. m. today at Chevy Chase Methodist Church. The address to the graduates will be given by Dr. Thomas N. Barrows, director of the Commission on Accreditation of Service Experience of the American Council of Education.

Baccalaureate services were held yesterday at Chevy Chase Methodist Church, with the Rev. Clarence W. Cranford, D.D., of Calvary Baptist Church, Washington, as speaker. Class day exercises were held Saturday on the lawn of the school, based upon the forest scenes from "As You Like It."

The 100th graduating class of Gonzaga High School received diplomas and honors last night from the Right Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Washington.

Martin O'Donohue, Washington lawyer and a 1919 graduate of the school, was the guest speaker at the commencement exercises.

He declared he felt modern secular education had failed to make progress in the present world of "political and economic confusion." He emphasized the need for schools that build character and will, with Christ as the ever-present ideal.

The Supreme Court decision barring religious classes in public schools is a "legalistic abortion of the First Amendment hindering the development of free intellect," he said.

Gonzaga and other parachial schools, O'Donohue added, will continue to develop moral character when other schools have failed.

Scholarships to universities were awarded the following graduating students: Robert Courtney, Fordham University; Laurent Beaubien, John Burgoyne and Thomas Herbert, Catholic University; Jan Kaczmarek and John Kennedy, Georgetown University; and James Creamer, Benjamin Franklin University.

Wilson Seniors Told World Needs Their Aid

Seniors of Wilson Teachers College yesterday were told that the world needs their vigor, vision and valor by the Rev. Crawford W. Brown, Canon Precentor of the Washington Cathedral.

Speaking at baccalaureate services in the Bethelhem chapel of the cathedral, Canon Brown said that for the first time in history a group of men who deny belief in a divine being and moral law control more than one-sixth of the land area of the world.

The 64 Wilson College seniors will be graduated Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock at ceremonies in the auditorium of Wilson High School, Nebraska ave. and Chesapeake st. nw.

D. C. Bridge Players Win In Alexandria

By Marian H. Barre
Post Reporter

Washington fans won both major bridge titles in the three-day Potomac Valley tourney concluded last night at the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria, the Cheeks Trophy falling to the team of C. C. Johnson, Henry Stearman, Vic Zeve and Col. J. T. Willis.

Mrs. E. P. Cotter and Mrs. William M. McIntyre, two feminine luminaries, won the open pair championship. It was Mrs. Cotter's second victory in the tournament.

The new foursome champions defeated the defending lineup by one board, establishing this lead at the half-way mark, and maintaining it to the finals.

The dispossesed team was composed of three Baltimoreans and Fred L. Kartin, a Washingtonian. Thirteen teams competed. It was a small game compared to the open championship played on Saturday, when 36 pairs survived a qualifying field of more than twice that number.

The Cotter-McIntyre duo were the only women on the honor list, serond plare going to A. L. Westrich and H. R. King; third, Miller Roberts and George Dickerman; fourth, David Murray and Joe White, all of Washington.

The Food Is Good, Too

Those Who Take Pleasure Wherever They Find It, Do Well to Look in Paris'

By Mary Van Rensselear Thayer

PARIS, FRANCE.—As usual this June, Paris is celebrating the Quinzieme de la Rose. The "Quinzieme," featured for no special reason except to remind Parisians it's spring, is climaxed this weekend by a charity gala, La Nuit de la Rose, staged amidst the extravagant rose gardens at Bagatelle. Meanwhile all store windows are gay with the favored blooms. Photographs, prints, artificial and real roses are imaginatively, often humorously displayed as, for instance in an antique shop window, a single red rose flaring jauntily from a glistening suit of armor. Sidewalk cafes, restaurants, are jammed. Besides the Opera, the Opera-Comique, the Comedie Francaise, some 41 theaters are playing to standing room only while six revues, five Chansonniers or little theaters pack them in. Heaven and the police alone know how many concerts, night clubs and other nocturnal festivities deprive the giddier element of shuteye.

Everything is terrifically expensive but, on the surface, even the severely respectable French middle class appear to be surprisingly affluent. Sole flies in the generally delicious ointment are a lack of taxis, due to gas rationing—and, at smaller restaurants, an ersatz coffee locally known as "Jus de Chapeaux" (Hat Juice) an implication the often revolting liquid was brewed from leather sweatbands!

EXCITINGLY varied theatrical fare ranges from Racine's "Brittanicus" impressively acted, to a little gem, appealingly titled "Les Mammelles de Tiresais." In between are such hits as Andre Roussin's, "The Ostrich Eggs"; a brittle satire on French military life called "Squadron Gaieties"; "Edward's Children," trio-authored by Marc Gilbert Sauvajon, Frederic Jackson and R. Bottomley.

Most devastatingly cynical is "Ardele ou La Marguerite," a fascinating study of just about every variety of love by France's more composed and sophisticated Saroyan, Jean Anouilh. Old timers are still on deck. Yvonne Printempts stars in "Du Cote de chez Proust"; Sascha Guitry, her former husband, has a comedy "Quadrille," with Gaby Morlay; while Paris' only too-well-seasoned society lover, Henri Bernstein, has come up with a vulgarly shoddy triangle piece with an obvious title, "The Thirst." M. Bernstein, incidentally, is flinging parties, high, wide and especially handsome and next week is giving a do for Ambassador and Mrs. David Bruce.

Josephine Baker, still as wiggly of hip and other salient points, is back at her usual stand, the Folies-Bergeres and, later, Les Ambassadeurs. Something new, however, has been added to La Baker's all over and very visible appeal, her skin has been painted or bleached to the most delicate, cafe-au-lait hue.

Ultimate Gastronomic Heights

ALL THE GREAT restaurants are functioning to ultimate gastronomic heights; fraises des bois clotted with cream; filet mignons with Bearnaise sauce; cotlettes of veal cooked in paper envelopes; blond asparagus; salmon with green sauce; huge truffles from Perigord, au cendre, fried in balls of pastry; pate de foie gras larded richly into brioche. Outstanding restaurant event of the season was Maxim's fiftieth anniversary celebration which lasted a whole week. Everyone in Paris who wanted to be seen and was sufficiently well-heeled, stuffed into Maxim's smallish, red plush and gilt rooms. A few ladies and others of similar sex, were gotten up fit to kill in 1900 era hats. Most of the others were awash with paradise and egrets, slathered with staggering amounts of jewelry, much of it borrowed from obliging Rue de la Paix firms. Most attractive aspect of the whoop-de-do was the arrival of many guests in a fancy assortment of horse-drawn cabs and carriages. Guests were presented with amusing paper hats and handkerchiefs printed with the original Maxim's menu. It was as amusing as all get out to find that in 1899, ecrivesse (an enlarged shrimp) cost one franc, 50 centimes a portion, while today the same critters set one back 250 francs.

Down at the posh Tour d'Argent, where pressed duck and canard a l'orange are specialties, and those ordering same receive their bird's identifying number as souvenir, last week proved pretty exciting. The 200,000th duck, instead of being slaughtered, was taken with great ceremony, to the roof and freed. Around his or her leg was the usual metal tag and anyone retrieving and returning it to the Tour d'Argent would receive the Gallic equivalent of an ice-box or washing machine—a sum of money and a number of free meals at the restaurant.

How to Remove Hand Cream Stains

What is the solution for removing greasy hand cream spots from a mahogany head board? Two months ago I retired for the night with a thick application of cream on my hands and failed to wear gloves. The spots are very noticeable. Tried water wax and liquid furniture polish with no success. A. G. O.

Moisten a soft cloth with carbon tetrachloride and sponge the spot. Light rubbing should remove the fat quickly. Follow the application by polishing the entire surface with a good furniture polish or wax.

Will you tell me if there is any place in Washington where one could take a course in bookbinding. M. J.

A course in bookbinding will be taught at the Catholic University starting June 27. The class will meet at 8:10 a. m. for an hour, five mornings a week for six weeks. In order to receive college credit for the course, it is required that the student have an A. B. degree. Those who do not have an A. B. degree and who do not wish to take the course for college credit may audit the course. For further information call the university. Also, at the same university in the department of library science there is a professor who will give private lessons in bookbinding. He may be reached by calling Adams 2993.

Since moving to this damp climate I notice each night when I bring my young son's bike and wagon in that wherever the paint chips it rusts. Is there some type of a clear protective liquid on the market we could cover them with? A. G. O.

You could give the toys a coat of high-grade spar varnish. This is resistant to moisture and will protect the metal from rusting as long as the varnish remains unbroken. Before applying the varnish, remove all rust and smooth rough spots by rubbing with fine sand paper or steel wool.

Another way to protect the toys from rust is to keep them constantly covered with a well rubbed coat of paste wax. Before applying the wax be sure the surface is clean and free from oil.

Could you tell me where to obtain a book on some information on cake decoration? I have a small decorating set but can not turn out cakes like bakeries. If you can't give me the information on a book, maybe you can tell me where to get a better decorator. H. E. A.

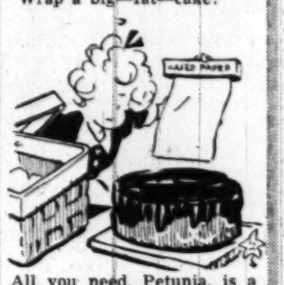
I'm sorry, I do not know of a book on cake decoration. Cake decoration, like all skills, must be developed with practice. You didn't tell me what kind of a decorator you have, but I have an idea that with practice it will turn out satisfactory decorations for you.

It is most important that the consistency of the frosting be exactly right. It should be firm enough when forced through the tube to hold the exact shape, but soft enough to push through readily. With experimentation you will soon discover the exact consistency.

Sometime when you have time, practice making decorations. Put them onto a cooky sheet instead of a cake so that the icing can be taken up and used over and over. With only an hour or two of practice, you will have improved your technique so much that you should be able to turn out a satisfactorily decorated cake. Remember that the men who decorate bakery cakes do it every day for years to develop the high degree of skill they have.

PETUNIA!

I'm ready for the picnic
But HOW, for goodness sake.
Can a narrow sheet of paper
Wrap a big—fat—cake?



All you need, Petunia, is a warm iron. Then you can make your waxed paper any width you want, just by sealing the strips together.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

As soon as he begins to walk and sometimes even before, the young child is fascinated by climbing. The steps, the top of the table, chairs, the sofa—so many things seem to be a challenge to him.

Because of the fact that he may fall and hurt himself, many of us are fearful and cautious about his climbing. We try to discourage the youngster or even stop him when he starts pulling himself up on top of something. Yet such activity is both normal and desirable. If we forbid it, muscular coordination may be hindered, an attitude of fearfulness be developed and a good deal of irritation be brought about.

As the youngster is learning, we should protect him against serious falls by being quietly on hand so that we can step in and help if the going gets too difficult. It is important, however, to be as unobtrusive as possible and not constantly be warning him to be careful.

As he learns to handle climbing situation of a simple sort, more difficult experiences can be made available. A series af packing boxes of different sizes, small ladders or even a backyard jungle gym will provide lots of climbing fun for him.

On the Capital Party Calendar . . .

WASHINGTON'S young set, having laid aside books and everything else that might remind them of the school season just past, yesterday enjoyed a typical summer Sunday afternoon and evening of partying.

Included on their crowded social calendar was an outdoors party given by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin at their home Abremont for Miss Barbara Miller and Carroll Morgan, jr., who'll be married Wednesday at Georgetown Presbyterian Church.

Miss Hope Erwin, who was a classmate at Vassar of Miss Miller, assisted her parents at the party. First the guests took a dip in the swimming pool, and then they had an outdoor supper. Lavender and yellow gladiolas and white larkspur grew in profusion on the grounds.

Among those there you might have seen Miss Miller's sisters who will attend her at the wedding Gale, Mary and Katherine Miller, and LeRoy Lytle Morgan who will serve his brother as best man, and the prospective ushers, John Kauffman, Calvin Cobb, P. T. G. Beauregard, Pierre Gaillard, Samuel Sterrett and Hugh Morris.

Some of the guests had to leave early so they might drop in at the cocktail party Robert E. Lee 4th gave at his home in Annandale, Va. He feted another popular Capital couple who became Mr. and Mrs. Thursday at Christ Church in Georgetown. They are Miss Sherrard Marthinson and Francis Girault Addison 3d.

Partial Report of 'Father' Lindsay

By Richard L. Coe

JUST ABOUT THE best-known father in America was in town over the weekend, Howard Lindsay, who co-authored "Life with Father," "Life with Mother" and played the elder Clarence Day in both hits.

Lindsay talks well and amusingly on any number of subjects, though he's a bit tired from his full season in "Life with Mother," which he and his wife, Dorothy Stickney, will take on the road next season.

"Life with Mother" has had a curious career, a victim of success. When it closed in New York a week ago after a full season, everyone was astonished. "Only one season! Why we thought it would go on and on" was the general comment.

That was one of the troubles, muses Lindsay. People just put off going, figuring they'd pick it up next year after the first box office rush was over.

Another complication seems to have been the title. "Life with Mother," people would say, "Why we've sen it." Eight years of "Life with Father" at the Empire semed to have convinced potential audiences that this was the same play.

Then there was the early question of theater parties, a New York gambit whereby one organization takes over all seats for one performance and benefits from upping the price scale for charity drives. Somehow the first three months slipped away, during which it was virtually impossible to get a seat. Hence the notion, better wait till next year.

Finally there was the cost of production and higher salary scales than "Life with Father" faced. That endearing favorite, born in a Maine summer theater, went into New York on $16,000 nine years ago. It was a one-set play and the only heavy salaries were those for Mr. and Mrs. Day, or Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay.

Still Not a Flop

When it came to "Mother," Lindsay and Callaborator Russel Crouse included three more juicy roles, demanding actors with heavier salaries. They also included two sets, one the Days' summer place, the other that Madison avenue living room from "Father." But, while it was the same set, it had to be entirely rebuilt. As a result, the sequel cost $100,000 to produce, so much has the cost of theater production mounted.

Though "Mother" isn't yet quite out of the red, there's no reason to call a play which had a spring tour, a New York season and prospects of a '49-'50 tour, a flop. It will have a two-week run in Baltimore in the fall, the same city, by the way, which opened its arms to the refurbished "Father" after its Maine tryout.

"And, believe it or not," adds Lindsay, "the reviews for 'Mother' were considerably bette than 'Father' got originally. Buck and I aren't complaining, though. 'Mother' seems well liked by those who see her and, anyway, we've always believed that no matter what you do in the theater, it's the audience which decides and knows. You may think you've written a good play, but unless it holds its audiences, you just haven't done the job."

MADELEINE CARROLL today begins one of those weeks which ought to make anyone rejoice in the pleasures of obscurity . . . Tonight she'll be addressing Rotary International at Madison Square Garden on the plight of children throughout the world, specifically the 20 million orphans of Europe, a tragedy with which she's well acquainted. . . . Tomorrow comes her postponed court case about whether a ticket buyer was bilked for a pinko evening when he saw her in "Goodbye, My Fancy." . . . She'll be playing that comedy nights as usual, handing the role over to Ruth Hussey and week's end and taking off for Europe, to be back again in the fall as the determined Congresswoman in Mrs. Kanin's play.

TRYOUTS TONIGHT at two local spots. . . . The newly-formed Washington Grove Summer theater will hold auditions for actors and technicians at the Mt. Vernon Players' headquarters, in the undercroft of the Mt. Vernon Place Methodist church, 900 Mass. ave. from 8 o'clock; they'll also audition tomorrow night. . . . Down in Alexandria, the Little Theater will be casting its annual Gadsby's Tavern revival, also tonight and tomorrow night. . . . The play is Dr. Benjamin Hoadley's "The Suspicious Husband" and the place is the Alexandria Recreation Center, Cameron and Howard sts.

'Movie Crew Shoots Scene at 27th, Q sts. With Robert Cummings, Ann Blyth as Stars

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

Bug-eyed in astonishment, mustache quivering in surprise, a citizen who looked very much like John Q. Public yesterday clucked the arm of a filling station attendant and blurted:

"Say—am I crazy or is that guy putting water in his gas tank?" The attendant glanced where the citizen was pointing and incredulity blossomed again.

For that's exactly what a nonchalant movie actor named Robert Cummings was doing, to the intense satisfaction of throngs who crowded the curbs at 27th and Q sts. nw. throughout the day.

Most of the spectators were getting their first look at how a movie is made. You could tell the spectators because they were calm, absorbed in what they were seeing. They stayed in one place.

They're Movie Makers

Those characters who darted in and out of Carl A. Friedrich's gas station at 27th and Q—the ones houting: "Al—George! Start yer action, kid. Awright, here we go . . . Camera!"—were the movie makers. Real, live ones, from Hollywood.

Here's the idea: Cummings is a young inventor who comes to Washington to patent a pill which, dropped in a gas tank, converts water into fuel. He meets a petite secretary here named Ann Blyth, and . . .

Anyway, a complete motion picture production unit, down to the last timekeeper, took over Friedrichs' station yesterday. Producer Robert Buckner, who lives in Norfolk when he isn't making movies, estimated Universal-International would spend $45,000 before the day was out "shooting" the magic pill episode.

This particular sequence finds Cummings driving into the station in his snappy 1933 Plymouth roadster. Besides him is the demure Miss Blyth, who is charming in a tan outfit and straw, bonnet-like, hat.

Water In "Gas" Tank

Cummings climbs out of the car, hoists a water can to the radiator and fills it. Then he saunters to the rear of the car and pours more water in the gas tank.

That's all there is to the "take." But to get it right, and to make some background shots, the 40-man crew and actors began work at 7:30 a. m. and were at it until well into the afternoon.

First off, "prop" men chopped down a few branches somewhere and tied them to the roof of the filling station. The shadow of their leaves broke the sun's glare on Cumming's car.

Then huge, square shields to stop or direct light were pulled into position, a few feet from the car. A short distance away, the sound crew turned on their instruments to record the actors' voices. A microphone, hung on the end of a long rod, hovered near the soon-to-speak actors.

The makeup man checked Cummings' pancake makeup. The script girl said, "Open your coat, please, Mr. Cummings." Cameraman Dick Towers peered into his instrument. Director Charles Barton glanced around, then yelled—"Quiet!"

There'll be seven more days of shooting here for the Hollywoodians. Then they'll head back to California where the film will be edited and most of its interior shots made. Sooner or later a motion picture titled "Free for All" will come to town.

BREATHING SPELL—The stars, Robert Cummings and Ann Blyth, relax between "takes"

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Groucho Marx walked on-stage, 15 minutes before his broadcast was to begin, to warm up the studio audience. "You people aren't paying a dime to see this show," Marx began. "You're about to see me bring on Noel Coward, Jimmy Durante, Lunt and Fontanne, three singers and an orchestra—all free of charge to you. And now my sponsor wants me to come out here, before you see this million dollars worth of talent, and put you in a good mood."

Melvin Frank, the film producer-writer, listened to a number of his friends reporting on the high fees they've been paying their psychoanalysts for many years. "There's one thing about psychoanalysts," said Frank. "It prepares you for the poverty in which it leaves you."

William P. Maloney, counsel to Jim Moffett in the multi-million dollar suit against the Arabian-American Oil Co., met with Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, the defense-counsel, before the trial. They expressed their views on the expected outcome and Judge Proskauer said: "I'll bet you the finest dinner in the world, at any restaurant you choose, that if you get a verdict it won't be for over a million dollars." Maloney made the bet. . . . Although the jury's verdict was set aside by the court, Maloney won his bet, for the verdict was for $1,500,000. And he's notified Proskauer that the restaurant at which he expects Proskauer to be his host at dinner is the Tour d'Argent, in Paris.

Ten months ago Nancy Walker, the musical star, married Gar Moore, the actor who appeared in "Paisan." A few days later, when there was a rumor that Miss Walker would divorce her bridegroom, she said: "That's ridiculous. We've been married only 10 days. I don't know him well enough to divorce him" . . . This week they were divorced in Mexico. "Now," said Miss Walker, when she returned to Hollywood, "I know him well enough."

J. Arthur Rank, the British film producer, was asked for a statement about the reasons for his current high poistion in the industry. "If I am successful, it's because of two principles I follow," replied Rank. "(1) Never to put my heart into affairs concerning money and (2) never to put any money into affairs concerning the heart."

Goldsborough Asks National Stabilization

Chestertown, Md., June 12 (AP).—Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough of Washington, D. C., suggested today it is time to try "something unorthodox" to keep the Nation's economy "on an even keel."

He said this is needed to deal with the "Communist complaint" about "capitalism's susceptibility to recurrent depressions."

The former congressman made his remarks in a speech to the 105 members of the graduating class of Washington College.

Discussing the country's economic structure, he recounted a plan proposed in Congress when he was a member in 1937. It was a plan to control inflation and "it was generally agreed that it would work," Judge Goldsborough said.

But it failed to gain approval of the House, he recalled, adding, "the criticism was—'it's not orthodox.'"

"Well, depressions are orthodox; wiping a man off the face of the earth economically through no fault of his is orthodox; the torturing by us of German prisoners to extort confessions is orthodox; the atomic bombing of open cities that killed hundreds of thousands of noncombatants, men, women and children, is orthodox," he declared.

"Isn't it time we were trying something unorthodox?

"The labor problem is in the process of orderly solution," he told the graduates. "Isn't it absurd that capitalism doesn't furnish a basic plan to keep the economy on an even keel and stop this recurrent nonsense of poverty in the midst of plenty?" he asked.

Four Put Up For Takoma Council Seat

Citizens groups of the Prince Georges County section of Takoma Park have named four men as candidates for the town council vacancy caused by the resignation of Sherwood Githens.

They are Lawrence Oosterhous, 904 Glaizewood ct., transportation economist; Robert E. Mohr, 217 Spring ave., paint dealer; Ellery Denison, 7207 13th pl., Government employe; and Elmer White, plumber.

Oosterhous, who is president of the Sligo Park Terrace Citizens' Association, received the indorsement of that group and the East Takoma Park Citizens' Association. The latter organization also named White, who is recording secretary, and Denison.

Indorsement of Mohr was given by the Spring Park Community Association, of which he is president.

Sunday Visit Ban to Stand At Gallinger

Restoration of Sunday visiting hours at Gallinger Hospital's Medical and Surgical Buildings is not being considered at this time, authorities said last night, despite offers of volunteers to handle visitors.

Sunday visits to patients were canceled May 15 because the staff had been unable to cope with crowds of up to 1500 persons storming the buildings in one hour, a Gallinger official stated.

Since then, church and civic leaders have staged a drive to obtain volunteers who would aid the hospital staff in handling the crowds, in an effort to have the Sunday visits restored.

"The volunteers will be more than welcome for registering visitors on week nights," said a hospital spokesman, "but the hospital administration cannot at present consider having Sunday visiting hours again."

Before the ban, "it got to the point where the place lost all semblance of a hospital on Sunday afternoons," the official said, "and we had to take this step for the welfare of the patients."

The Sunday visitors between 2 and 3 p. m. numbered about 1200 on an average for the two buildings, which house some 500 general patients, and peak Sundays brought as many as 1500, it was reported.

An attempt has been made for the past two years to control the situation by requiring visitors to obtain cards, limited to two to a patient, before being admitted on Sundays. There was also a 15-minute limit for each visit. But often the buildings would not be cleared until 3:30 or 4 p. m., it was declared.

Along with increasing crowds, the number of volunteers from church and other organizations who aided the hospital staff in handling visitors fell off, and the result was sheer confusion., the spokesman stated.

Since the order was issued on May 15, only clergymen and families of critically ill patients have been allowed on Sundays, and "the hospital atmosphere has been restored," according to the official.

There have been no changes in other visiting hours, which are as follows:

Medical and Surgical Buildings, 2 to 3 p. m. on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, and 7 to 8 p. m. on Tuesday and Friday; tuberculosis section, 6 to 8 p. m. Wednesday and Sunday; pediatrics section, 1 to 3 p. m. Wednesday and Sunday; crippled children, 1 to 3 p. m. Wednesday and Sunday, and 6:30 to 7:30 p. m. Wednesday; psychiatric section, 1 to 3 p. m. Wednesday and Sunday, 10 to 11 a. m. Sunday, and isolation wards, 2 to 3 p. m. Sunday and 6:30 to 7:30 p. m. Wednesday.

Soldier Hurt In 3-Story Fall to Alley

Pfc. Donal J. Meyers, 34, of the Army Institute of Pathology, was in serious condition at Walter Reed Hospital yesterday after falling from the roof of a three-story building to an alley.

Diagnosis was a broken ankle, possible fractured vertabra, and possible fractured skull. Police are holding a companion of Meyers pending investigation.

Police said they learned the two were drinking Saturday night, later bought a bottle, and went to a rooming house at 1310 L st. nw. They were in the attic for a time, and later Meyers went out on the roof alone. About 1:30 a. m., he was found unconscious on the pavement.

Organ Recital Wednesday

Fobert Shone, organist of Clarendon, Va., Methodist Church will present a recital of organ music at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday at Calvary Methodist Church, 1463 Columbia rd. nw. The performance will be sponsored by the chancel choir of Calvary Church.

'Powerless' School Board Meets Tuesday

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

When the new nine-member Falls Church School Board holds its first meeting Tuesday night, it will be a board without immediate authority over its own schools.

In a recent Fairfax Circuit Court decision, it was ruled that Falls Church had "the right" to operate its own schools (which Fairfax County has run since 1942).

But the court said formal transfer could not be made until the county and the city arranged a financial settlement suitable to both.

And last week, the Falls Church City Council appointed the nine-member school board, which eventually will control the city's three elementary and one high school.

Mrs. Mark M. Regan, temporary board chairman, said yesterday she has advised school principals to "continue to take orders" from Fairfax School Superintendent W. T. Woodson until a settlement is reached.

When finances are settled, Mrs. Regan said, the State Board of Education still will have to determine who shall act as administrator of Falls Church schools. The job may be given to:

1. Fairfax Superintendent Woodson, acting as a joint administrator of both Fairfax and Falls Church schools with the city school board setting the local school policy.

2. The Arlington school superintendent, acting under a similar arrangement.

3. A separate school superintendent for Falls Church alone.

The new school board will meet at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday at Madison School, Lee hwy.

Legion Chief Asks Unified Effort Against Reds

A unified effort against communism by veterans, patriotic, civic, labor and other organizations was urged yesterday by Perry Brown, at Beaumont, Tex., national commander of the American Legion.

Brown spoke at a meeting of the Legion commander's national advisory committee at the Legion offices at 1608 K st. nw.

"We who are conscious of the evils of communism and seek to eliminate its threat to America are ourselves giving comfort to Communists by virtue of the divergent approaches we take," Brown said.

He said the Legion would be "a welcome party to a conference to trade ideas on how to fight communism and to work out some interorganizational plan.

Kelley Upholds Non partisan Election Plan

James J. Kelley, Arlington Democratic candidate for delegate to the General Assembly, last night expressed disagreement with State Senator Charles R. Fenwick on the question of nonpartisan elections.

Fenwick had attacked a "Town Meeting," scheduled for 8:15 p. m. Wednesday to nominate a non-partisan candidate for the Arlington County Board, as attempting "to substitute nonpartisan elections for the two-party system of government."

In a statement last night, Kelley said that if elected to the General Assembly, he would "immediately introduce legislation to provide for nonpartican elections for the school and county boards.

Historic Church In Alexandria To Be Reopened

Alexandria's old Presbyterian Meeting House, which has been closed since 1886, was reorganized as a church yesterday by a commission appointed by the Potomac Presbytery.

Built in 1774, the old church at 321 S. Fairfax st. has been a historic shrine for many years. Washington's funeral sermon was delivered there and the Tomb of the Unknown Revolutionary Soldier is in the church yard.

Differences among members of the congregation following the Civil War caused the closing of the church in 1886. Regular services will begin next Sunday, with church school at 9:30 a. m. and morning worship at 11 a. m.

Church Society Installs Heckman As President

Robert C. Heckman, 143 Carroll st. se., a member of the St. Peter's parish was installed yesterday as president of the St. Peter's Holy Name Society during ceremonies at the church, 2d and C sts se.

Other officers, installed by the spiritual director, the Rev. Martin W. Hyland, were: Justin J. McCarthy, first vice president; Lloyd E. Hammett, second vice president; Ladislaus J. Esunas, secretary; Herman Eisenhauer, treasurer; Daniel Inabinett, marshal, and Peter J. McKenna, sr., and Robert Childers, delegates to the regional Holy Name Society.

Main speaker was Charles E. Ford, lawyer.

East Gate Lions Elect Andrew Gemeny

Andrew Gemeny, an insurance firm representative, of 4611 Amherst rd., Calvert Hills, Md., is new president of the East Gate Lions Club, it was announced yesterday. Other officers of the club elected recently include vice presidents, Jones D. Jasper, George A. Unsinn and Darwin A. Drewyer; Junior F. Crowell, secretery; Bernard T. Dodder, treasurer; Walter C. Breckenridge, lion tamer; Jack Riley, tail twister; and Walter Miles jr. and Arthur K. Jacobs, directors.

Mrs. Lee Tracy Better

New York, June 12 (AP).—Helen Lee Tracy, wife of Actor Lee Tracy, was reported "definitely recovered" today from a coma in which she had remained since Friday night.

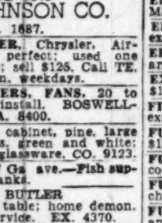
German Princess to Wed Amarillo Man, Live in Texas

Langen, Germany, June 12 (AP).—A Texas interior designer and a granddaughter of Germany's late Kaiser Wilhelm will be married at Hechingen on June 21. Then they will settle down in Texas.



Cecilie

He is Clyde Harris, 31, of Amarillo, Tex., a former U. S. Army officer. She is Princess Cecilie, hazel-eyed younger daughter of Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm of Prussia, and a great, great granddaughter of Queen Victoria of England. The princess also is 31.

"After we get married, we will settle down in Texas," the blonde princess said in confirming the arrangements. Her full name, as listed in Almanach de Gotha, the blue book of royalty, is Cecilie Viktoria Anastasia Zita Thyra Adelheid Hohenzollern.

They will be married in the bleak ancestral fortress home of the Hohenzollerns—Prussia's ruling family for hundreds of years—in the French zone.

Harris said he met the princess in the summer of 1945. Then a captain in the Army, Harris had a job with the U. S. Military Government in Darmstadt, tracing and restoring historic fine arts collections scattered by the war.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

When's the Next Train For Little Rock?

William Hines of 3043 S. Abingdon st., Arlington, Va., has just gotten an interesting letter from his friend David Stolberg, who lives at 3628 New Hampshire ave. nw. when he's in Washington.

Dave enlisted in the Army after serving as city editor of the Arlington Daily, and is currently taking on-the-job newspaper training on the Arkansas Gazette, in Little Rock.

His first problem was to find a place to live, and after a brief bit of scouting he reports that he has been successful.

For $10.25 per week, he gets a nice room — plus three whopping meals per day.

CONVERSATION PIECE

On some beats, motorcycle cops patrol the streets in pairs. I've been informed that this practice is followed because some assignments are considered too dangerous for a single officer.

At any rate, I've often noticed that the two policemen will ride abreast of each other for miles, and carry on a long, friendly conversation.

What interests me about the situation is the fact that Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King warned some time back that any motorist who drove while carrying on a conversation with a passenger in his car, or while listening to his auto radio, might be prosecuted on failing to give "full time and attention" to his driving.

I can't help wondering whether this also applies to policemen, chatting back and forth from one vehicle to another.

INFORMATION, PLEASE

Chris Heurich, jr., of the Heurich Brewing Co., 26th and D sts. nw., wonders if you District Liners can help him with a problem that stumps most of our veterinarians.

During the summer months, flies and insects make life miserable for most dogs by attacking the tenderest parts of their ears, and leaving ugly red sores.

Chris says he's tried all sorts of salves, ointments and powders—to no avail. Nothing seems to help the pups until the fly season is over.

So, if any District Liner has discovered a good solution to the problem, let's give Chris a hand by dropping him a line.

PIED TYPE DEPT.

Alvin Guttag of 717 Chillum rd., Chillum, Md., notes that a recent edition of this newspaper included front-page stories about Alger Hiss and Golf Concessioner Leoffler. And prior to a hasty correction, excerpts from the two stories went like this:

"After requesting to be put under oath, Leoffler read a statement refuting president of the Carnegie Foundation for International Peace." "Hiss was president of the criticism of his 28-year stewardship of the golf courses."

Our printers might find it easier to keep those stories straight if they'd just remember that the Hiss trial concerns alleged Reds, whereas the Leoffler investigation is about alleged greens.

PERSONAL NOTES

HORSE CHESTNUT

Mrs. Robert H. Martin of 3016 Dumbarton ave. nw. says that old jokes, like old friends, are the best.

By way of example, she reminds us about the fellow who bought a horse. At first, he fed the horse three times a day; then twice a day; then once; finally, not at all.

"He couldn't tell. The horse died before the experiment was finished."

SCHOOL DAYS

"Your reference to track and field records revived memories for me," writes Henry F. Unger of 4930 South Dakota ave. nw.

"I was a so-called sprinter for the Cathedral Latin High School team in Cleveland years ago. I recall the day we were matched against the East Tech team.

"As we were waiting for the start of our race, I chatted with an evenly proportioned Negro, who confided that this was his first track meet.

"But at the gun, he sped past me as if I was standing still. And in the years that followed, Jesse Owens continued to rush past others, until he gained world renown as an Olympic champion.

"I wonder if he was thinking of Olympic triumphs that day so long ago when we raced in the dank basement corridor at East Tech."

NO SALE

It was one of those ads that no red-blooded American can resist.

It described this marvelous auto's sleek beauty, its powerful engine, its sturdy construction and its amazing performance and economy. Tremendously impressed, I felt the urge to rush right out and buy one.

Then I looked at the name and realized that it was the same mediocre make I've been driving for the past year.

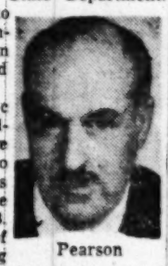
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Israel Bluntly Warned by U. S.

By Drew Pearson

One of the hottest notes in recent diplomatic history has just been handed the Israeli government by the State Department. It threatens to revise the entire American attitude toward Palestine.



Pearson

Diplomatic insiders consider the language of the pote to be almost as blunt as the famed Frank B. Kellogg note of 1927 putting Mexico "on trial before the world" because of Mexican seizure of American oil lands.

In fact, United States Ambassador James G. MacDonald seemed to consider the note so brusque that when he delivered it to Foreign Minister Moshe Sharet in Tel Aviv, he looked at Sharet, half smiled, read the note aloud and cryptically remarked:

Then he left.

Last blunt paragraph of the warning reads:

"If the government of Israel continues to reject the basic principles set forth by the counsel of the United Nations and the friendly advice of the United States Government for the purpose of furthering the cause of peace in Palestine, the United States Government will regretfully be forced to the conclusion that a complete revision of its attitude toward Israel has become unavoidable."

Truman Intervenes

One amazing feature of the peremptory diplomatic message is that President Truman takes personal responsibility. The first paragraph of the note states that the message is being sent at the request of the President of the United States.

The note deals with two main subjects:

1. Boundaries between Israel and Arab lands.
2. Arab refugees.

The question of boundaries is dealth with only briefly, the United States demanding that Israel compensate the Arab countries for additional lands seized by Jewish armies after the date of the United Nations decision of November 29, 1947.

The main body of the note pertains to the 600,000 to 800,000 Arab refugees who seek to return to their homes and territory now held by Israel.

Since the war, the Israeli government has said that it would be willing to assist in taking care of these refugees, provided the Arab governments assist also. However, Israeli has refused to bring them back to their former homes, first because it would automatically cut off further Jewish migration from Europe, second because the cost would be prohibitive.

At present, Jews are migrating from Europe to Israel at the rate of 25,000 to 30,000 a month. A total of about 60,000 Jewish immigrants have been placed in new camps, because of lack of housing elsewhere in Israel. And the new government faces the basic fact that that it cannot have both Jewish and Arab migration. It must take one or the other.

Recently, the United States made a financial survey of the Arab refugee situation and decided it would cost an average of $500 each to resettle the Arabs. And the State Department now demands that, if the Israeli government will not repatriate the refugees, it must bear the cost of resettlement.

Israel is willing to pay for the land and belongings that the refugees left behind, but has not been willing to pay the huge resettlement bill.

Army Lobbyist

He is Samuel Schwag, former legal officer for the Quartermaster Corps, who now represents manufacturers seeking contracts with the quartermaster.

Schwag sends out printed postal cards to all bidders, advising them of his former connection with the Quartermaster Corps, and promising: "I can help you out on——." Then he fills in the number of the contract in ink.

There is nothing secret about the names of bidders and numbers on Army contracts. They are made public. However, Schwag seems to have a secret connection inside the Army, for data on contract penalties is confidential information.

Despite this, within a week after a contractor has been penalized for not living up to the letter of his contract, he sometimes gets another printed card from Schwag, who writes:

"Would you like refund on penalties of ——?" Again the blank is filled in with the number of the contract.

Note — The Treasury Department's Internal Revenue Bureau refuses to let its former attorneys practice before the Government until two years after they leave the Government. However, the Army flatly refuses to apply the same rule. Its refusal is an "open "invitation" to lawyer lobbyists.

Under the Dome

Freshman Congressman Homer Thornberry of (Austin) Texas, whose parents were deaf and dumb, has been named a director of Washington's Gallaudet College—only graduate senior college in the world for the deaf and dumb . . . The Federal-aid-to-education bill has no stronger supporter than Republican Congressman James Golden of Kentucky, who was born on the Daniel Boone trail of the lonely pines. "We mountain folk know the value of a warm schoolroom and good teachers in educating the citizens of tomorrow," drawls Golden . . . In his spare moments, hard-working Congressman John Marsalis, Colorado Democrat, plays some of the fanciest golf in Congress.

Our Alteration Departments vote you, the hundreds of thousands of Hecht Co. customers, our favorite "pin-up." Naturally all women aren't a perfect size 12 and all men aren't a perfect size 40 . . but regardless of your measurements . . . it's our job to make your clothes fit. In this way can we do justice to your individual personalities . . . make the clothes you choose a source of great personal pride. To provide these all-important services, The Hecht Co.'s Alteration Departments are staffed with 96 experienced tailors, tailoresses and seamstresses . . . equipped with the finest machines industry can furnish, even though much of their work is done by hand. The men's department handles over 68,000 suits, coats, sport jackets, and slacks in an average year. Under the supervision of Mr. Tucci, a name connected with this department for two generations, our tailors and tailoresses apply the necessary alterations to your clothing with all the care and precision of a prized personal possession. They perform the type of work that has won the respect and admiration of thousands of men in Washington.

And when it comes to putting a dart here . . . a gusset there . . . a hem or a tuck on thousands of women's garments in one year . . . Mr. Iacone and his staff of seamstresses can take a bow for a job well done. For here the old established alteration methods are not quite adequate. Constantly changing designs in women's fashions require up-to-the-minute knowledge of styling so that alterations will lend themselves to the original cut of the garment. So important is this phase of their work, that four one-hour classes for associates are conducted each week by Mr. Iacone in new dressmaking techniques.

The Hecht Co. knows the importance of satisfying style-minded Washingtonians. Bringing the buying public the wearing apparel they want is mighty important . . . but that's only half the job. The other vital half is assuring our customers of properly fitted clothes. And, our Alteration Departments do just that . . . to make The Hecht Co. a great place to work . . . a great place to shop.

RICHARD J. STANLEY, our Work Room Superintendent, is the man behind The Hecht Co.'s sewing circles. He comes from New Jersey and has been with The Hecht Co. 16 years. At home, he lets his wife do all the needle work when it comes to mending. Mr. Stanley is the proud owner of a 28-foot cabin cruiser and is an angler (fisherman, that is) from way back. In fact his favorite topic of conversation is a story about a great big fish . . . which of course got away.
